240-Foot Leap In Monument Kills Man, 51

U. S. Machinist Plunges in Fear He Is Going Mad; First Since 1928

A 51-year-old Government machinist hurled himself to his death 240 feet down the Washington Monument shaft at 2:40 p. m. yesterday.

The last suicide inside the Monument was in 1928 when a woman leaped to death down the shaft. Since then entrances to the shaft have been barred by 6½-foot wire safety fences.

Sightseer Hears Thump

The body was found by Morris Kinzer, a monument guard, and C. E. Farr, elevator operator, who hurried to the shaft's pit after a sightseer—one of 2100 who visited the structure yesterday—reported he had heard a "loud thump" on the concrete.

Farr's elevator was at the top of the 555-foot monument at the time of the plunge.

The broken body, concealed by a heavy white cloth, was carried out of the monument as throngs of curious jostled about.

Positive identification was made by Bob Schrader, 16, of 2213 Douglas st. ne., a neighbor of the victim. Deputy Coroner Richard Rosenberg said he would issue a certificate of suicide.

According to Holker's wife, Lucy, an employe of St. Francis de Sales Catholic Church, her husband had been haunted by the fear that he was losing his mind.

She told Lieut. Richard Felber of the homicide squad that Holker had undergone two surgical operations in recent months and suffered spells of depression.

According to Felber, Holker had, of late, been constantly complaining to his wife: "Lucy, I think I'm losing my mind."

Attended Mass

She told Felber that Holker attended mass at St. Francis de Sales Church early yesterday and that he left their home at 1 p. m. with the remark that he was just "going out for a while."

The Holkers, both natives of Germany, have been married for 25 years and neighbors said they regarded Holker as "an ideal husband." The couple had lived in the well-kept white gungalow on Douglas st. for the last nine years. They have no children.

The body of the victim, Paul L. Holker, 2215 Douglas st. ne., was broken into three pieces in the death plunge. A limb was torn loose by a metal brace in the shaft about 100 feet from the concrete bottom. Part of the torso remained on metal cross-beam braces about 3 feet from the bottom while the remainder of the body, lay twisted on the concrete flooring.

The man had been employed as a machinist at the Naval Gun Factory until about a month ago when he accepted a similar position at

Polio Epidemic Road Blockade Called Success

Anderson, Ind., Aug. 7 (AP).—Anderson's campaign against visitors from a nearby poliomyelitis epidemic area was called a success today and the road blockade was lifted.

"I think they'll stay home now," commented Robert Morgan, assistant chief of police.

All cars on the two important highways from the stricken area into Anderson were stopped yesterday and this morning. No one refused to turn back when the police explained the situation.

Lowly Starlings Decimate Beetles

Bear Mountain, N. Y., Aug. 7 (NYHT).—Japanese beetles will not plague New York State gardens this summer, according to a survey completed today by Dr. C. H. Curran, of the American Museum of Natural History.

Dr. Curran credited nature with wholesale decimation of the leaf-eating bronze pests—a feat which tons of DDT and acres of be tle traps have annually failed to accomplish.

Dr. Curran said the main assault against the beetles has been waged by the lowly starling, a bird that generally finds few friends among farmers or householders. The starlings found conditions for eating beetle larvae ideal last spring, and made the most of them, Dr. Curran said.

Pledges to Aid Iran Not Met, Premier Says

Cites U. S. Silence On Cry for Wheat, Hits Russia, Britain

Tehran, Iran, Aug. 7 (AP).—Premier Maraghei Mohammed Saed declared today the United States, Russia and Britain have not lived up to their promises in the Tehran Declaration of 1943 to help Iran.

He said the United States had given no positive reply to an appeal for 200,000 tons of wheat to avert a threatened famine and, in the present situation, "200,000 tons of wheat is more valuable than 200,000 field guns."

At the same time, Foreign Minister Ali Aschar Hekmat said Iran has asked the United States for 129 million dollars under President Truman's proposals to aid in the development of backward areas.

He said this was the immediate urgent minimum need for agriculture, industry, health and education in Iran.

Iran and Hashemite Jordan (Trans-Jordan) announced in a joint communique they have reached a complete understanding concerning political, economic and trade relations. Informed sources said it probably will be formalized later in a signed treaty.

Premier Saed declared the only actual postwar help furnished Iran by the United States was the sale of arms and ammunition and that Iran was paying for that.

The Premier added that he had approached the United States last year in a "friendly manner" requesting 200,000 tons of wheat this summer because of a food shortage and promising payment by installment or repayment in wheat later.

He said the United States treated the request "purely as a business proposition, not as an economic or political question as we expected."

He said Iran needed immediate food supplies to avert serious famine this coming winter because of poor crops, and because famine leads to panic, fear and anarchy.

Foreign Minister Hekmat said Russia not only had not helped, but still owes Iran a wartime debt of about 12 tons of gold and 19 million dollars.

Australian Strikers to Meet

Sydney, Australia, Aug. 7 (U.P.). The end of Australia's seven-week-old coal strike appeared near today as the miners executive committee called mass meetings of strikers for Tuesday and Wednesday to vote on a back-to-work proposal.

GOP Offers Cooperation On China

U. S. Shows Interest In Moves for Pact Against Communists In Pacific Region

By The Associated Press

A Republican offer to work out a strong China policy for this Government on a bipartisan basis was extended to the Administration yesterday.

It came through Representative Joseph W. Martin of Massachucetts, House GOP leader. He said it was the feeling of "most Republicans."

It followed close on a China pronouncement by Senator Vandenberg (R., Mich.), GOP foreign policy leader, which showed his thinking on China parallelled in important ways that of Secretary of State Acheson.

Two-party cooperation in foreign policy in meeting the Red menace in Europe has not extended to China.

The State Department's publication of the China White Paper on Friday was characterized, meanwhile, by Chinese Ambassador V. K. Wellington Koo as "an unusual step, especially at this time when my country is engaged in a desperate struggle to check the Communist aggression and to preserve her independence as a nation."

It was the first official reaction from Nationalist Government representatives here to the diplomatic summary of U. S.-Chinese relations.

"The big volume represents mostly the American view of the picture," Dr. Koo said. "There is, of course, a Chinese side to it. The Chinese Government is studying its contents and will express its view."

Commenting that errors of judgment were not confined to China alone, Dr. Koo said he was glad Acheson does not take a pessimistic view of the situation in China.

"I am glad that a new and constructive American policy is now under study and formulation," he continued.

"The situation calls for not only self-help on China's part, but also aid and assistance from other freedom-loving nations. For a free China is indispensable to a free

President of Philippines Arrives This Afternoon

Philippines President Elpidio Quirino, one of the originators of the move for a Pacific alliance, will arrive at National Airport at 4:30 p. m. today for an official three-day visit.

President Truman will meet the Philippines Chief of State at the airport and accompany him to Blair House for a state dinner.

3 Women Killed, 3 Men Injured As Car Overturns

Three Washington women were killed and their male companions were injured last night when their automobile overturned near Bryantown, Md., on Route 5.

The dead were identified by Maryland State Police as:

Mrs. Bertha Campbell, 25, of 3627 11th st. nw.

Miss Sarah Stevenson, 32, of 1004 Kenilworth ave. ne.

A woman identified only as "Jane," who lives in the "1200 block' of K st. se.

The injured were Herman B. Coates, 28, of 2719 11th st. nw., reported to be the driver, who suffered multiple abrasions; Willie T. Jones, 31, of 1514 T st nw., fractured collar bone, and Jefferson D. Pugh, 34, of 1246 11th st. nw. All were taken to Physicians Memorial Hospital, La Plata.

Chiang, Rhee Urge Pact Against Reds

Chinhae, Korea, (Monday) Aug. 8 (AP). — Chinese Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek and Korean President Syngman Rhee today asked for a conference of Asian powers to frame a Pacific pact against communism.

The leaders of Nationalist China and the South Korean Republic requested Philippine President Elpidio Quirino to call the conference. In a joint statement, they said:

"We are strongly of the opinion that countries of the Pacific in general and Far Eastern countries in particular are facing a greater danger from international Communism today than any other part of the world."

The request came as dispatches from Manila and Washington indicated Quirino may drop Chiang from any Pacific alliance.

Quirino is on his way to Washington to visit President Truman. The original foundation for a Pacific pact was laid last month by Chiang and Quirino.

MacArthur's Return as Arms Witness Asked

13 Senators Seeking 175 Million for Aid Of Non-Red China

By The Associated Press

Senator William F. Knowland (R., Calif.) yesterday called for "immediate" return from Japan of Gen. Douglas MacArthur to testify on the foreign arms aid program.

Knowland and 12 other Senators are trying to get 175 million dollars of the proposed $1,450,000,000 fund earmarked for military aid to non-Communist China.

Knowland also requested that Vice Admiral Oscar C. Badger, commander of United States Naval Forces in the China area, be returned with the Far Eastern Army chief to testify before the Senate Foreign Relations and Armed Services Committees.

The committees open their joint hearings today with Secretary of State Acheson as the first witness on the bill intended to cool off any Russian aggressive ideas.

The House Foreign Affairs Committee has some 13 witnesses lined up on the same bill including Brig. Gen. Bonner Fellers, a former MacArthur aide.

The controversial measure now contains $1,160,000,000 for North Atlantic Pact nations; 261 million dollars for Greece and Turkey, and 27 million dollars for Iran, Korea and the Philippines.

Many lawmakers argue the total amount is too large.

Knowland is a member of the Armed Services group and author of the plan to set aside 175 million dollars of the arms bill for China.

Knowland, writing to Acheson and Defense Secretary Johnson, observed that the Joint United States Chiefs of Staff will not have

29 From 2 States Favor Home Rule

Illinois, Michigan Representatives in Group Approving Kefauver Bill

By Chalmers M. Roberts
Post Reporter

Twenty-nine of the 43 House members from Illinois and Michigan today are on record for some sort of District home rule. Eight are opposed and six are noncommittal.

A check by the Washington Post of the 12 who were not members of the 80th Congress when a home rule bill weathered two House roll calls, showed 7 favor home rule, 1 is opposed and 4 are noncommittal.

Similar surveys were made previously for New England, the West Coast states, and the Mountain States plus the Dakotas. Checked were new members, those not voting in the 1948 House roll calls on home rule and those who split their votes last year. Adding in the 1948 votes of members also in the present Congress, the overall total for the five surveys are:

For: 116.

Against: 23.

Non-committal: 17.

Included in the "for" count are supporters of the Senate-approved Kefauver bill, of the principle of home rule without specific commitment to the Kefauver bill, and those "inclined" toward some sort of home-rule measure.

Hearing Today

The Kefauver bill and other home-rule measures will be considered again at a 10:30 a. m. meeting today of the House District Subcommittee headed by Representative Oren Harris (D., Ark.). A majority of the seven-man group is known to be opposed to home rule, but may agree to let the full committee, where the division is close, vote on the proposal.

Another plan, to give the District a voteless delegate in Congress instead of home rule, also is expected to come up for consideration. It is being advanced by three or four committee members as a "compromise" substitute Kefauver bill.

Here are the opinions of members of the Illinois and Michigan delegations who were not in the House last year:

Barratt O'Hara (D., Ill.), a former State lieutenant governor:

"I have always believed in peoples everywhere enjoying to the fullest extent the right of self-government. I have seen nothing during the seven months that I have been in Washington to lead me to believe that the people of the District are any less capable of governing themselves than the peoples anywhere else in the world. To continue to deny them the right of self-government is to continue a brutal and inexcuseable affront to the dignity of a considerable segment of our fellow Americans. Cer-

Town a Grave of Rubble

Helpless Relatives Watch Earth Swallow Up Victims

By Wigberto Duenas

Quito, Aug. 7 (U.P.).—I went to devastate Pelileo today in search of the 11 members of my family. I was the first person to arrive after the holocaust of Friday. The only ones I could find were my father and four other members of my family, wandering aimlessly and only half-conscious in the ruins of the town.

With the help of friends I was able to excavate the corpses of my stepmother and a niece. I had to leave the rest of my family in the horrible grave of rubble that is Pelileo.

Whole hills around the town have collapsed as if crushed by a giant hand, burying farmhouses and killing probably hundreds of country people.

In the town itself I did not find one house that was not totally destroyed. Even the foundations were cracked in many pieces and scattered. I found several long cracks in the earth over a yard wide.

Part of the town of Pelileo fell into a chasm that extends at least 800 meters to the River Pelileo.

The town is a cemetery. Many of the corpses lie half buried in debris.

It was imposible to stay long. The stench was too sickening.

When I returned, I urged President Galo Plaza Lasso to visit Pelileo, which he did. Later he told me, "The scenes were horrible, Dantesque. I never could have imagined what you told me."

One of the hills collapsed and dammed the River Pelileo. Now there is a lake 400 meters wide and still growing. If it continues to flood the area it may threaten other nearby towns.

Almost as badly hit as Pelileo are the towns of Pillaro and Guano, each of 8000 inhabitants. Reconstruction would seem a futile task. The land seems to be spoiled for cultivation in an area of at least 1500 square kilometers.

Perhaps we shall never know the exact number of people killed. Dozens of small villages have simply disappeared. If there are many survivors, they have fled to the country, where I saw many wandering about.

I ran across a group last night

Senate Probers Aim To Eliminate the Need For 'Influence Peddlers'

By The Associated Press

Senate "5 per center" probers last night said they are trying to help the small businesman get Government contracts without feeling he needs "a peddler of influence."

"One of the aims of the subcommittee," Chairman Hoey (D., N. C.) said, "is to attempt to improve methods" of Government buying. It is already at work on legislation.

Secretary of Defense Johnson will be today's lead-off witness at hearings expected to last at least two weeks. The subcommittee has asked Johnson to outline what the Military Establishment is doing concerning activities of commission men in helping get contracts for a fee, often 5 per cent.

The Secretary will be followed to the witness stand by Paul Grindle, Massachusetts furniture manufacturer whose statements touched off the investigation which led to suspension of two Army major generals.

Just before throwing the inquiry open to the public in hearings beginning today, Hoey declared in

'Included Twin' Tumor Removed From Baby's Chest

Ann Arbor, Mich., Aug. 7 (AP).—Two-year-old Judy Rae Carpenter was given a better than even chance to live today after surgeons removed from her chest a tumor "at least as big as a man's head."

University Hospital doctors said it was the largest tumor of its kind they ever had seen. It had the bodily components of another child.

Dr. Vernon L. Boersma of the hospital said the disorder was known as the "included twin."

Judy is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Carpenter of Morrice, Mich.

Oxnam Blasts Catholic Policy On School Aid

Methodist Bishop Also Attacks Hierarchy As 'Totalitarian' Force

By The Associated Press

Methodist Bishop G. Bromley Oxnam of New York charged yesterday that the Roman Catholic hierarchy is responsible for "killing" proposed Federal aid to education legislation.

Speaking on Ed Hart's program "Is Congress Doing Its Job?" over WWDC, the bishop declared that recent attacks on backers of the legislation are "a coldly calculated plan" to deny Federal aid to public schools "unless the hierarchy can get its hands into the public treasury and secure millions for the support of parochial education."

During the broadcast, the Methodist clergyman asserted that there is a "striking parallel between the organizational structure and method of the world wide Communist Party and the world wide Roman Catholic political party."

He also cited statements of the National Catholic Welfare Conference, which is composed of members of the American Roman Catholic hierarchy, and an encyclical letter of Pope Pius XI, to support "the blunt fact" that "the Roman Catholic Church does not believe in our public school system."

"We dare not speak in pleasantries . . . when the American principle of the separation of church and state is in jeopardy," Bishop Oxnam said, adding that "the hierarchy has launched a full scale attack upon this principle."

The battle over Federal aid to education flared up in June when Francis Cardinal Spellman of New York blasted Representative Graham A. Barden (D., N. C.) for his sponsorship of a bill which would provide 300 million dollars annually for aid to public schools only. Cardinal Spellman charged that it was "un-American anti-Catholic legislation" and said that Barden was venting "venom upon children."

Last month the cardinal turned his guns on Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt after she said in her syndicated newspaper column that she favored use of Federal money for

20 Million Put as Loss To Property In Ecuador

Four Towns All But Razed; New Tremors Rock Area

By Jorge Mantilla

Quito, Ecuador, Aug. 7 (AP).—Mounting reports from central Ecuador's earthquake-ravaged area put the death toll beyond 4600. Unofficially, property damage was estimated at 20 million dollars.

Four towns in the stricken area practically disappeared from the map. They are Guano, Pelileo, Patate and Pillaro.

The quakes struck an area extending over more than 1500 square miles along the slopes of the Andes Mountains Friday. The population of the area was about 300,000.

Hardest hit was a district of 370 square miles, where about 17,000 people were living.

Many Thousand Injured

The injured ran into many thousands. Attention thus far has been devoted to the larger cities and towns. It is feared the death toll will rise even higher when rescue teams report from small villages east of the Andes.

President Galo Plaza Lasso announced that 3200 persons were killed at Pelileo alone Friday. The President made his announcement in a radio broadcast on his return from Ambato.

Pelileo is 22 miles from Ambato, Ecuador's third largest industrial city and first point which reported the Friday quakes.

President Plaza Lasso said Pelileo was destroyed completely and of 3500 residents only 300 survived.

Truman Sends Message

United States planes from Panama reached Ecuador early today with medical supplies, medical officers and radio equipment.

The Caribbean Command reported that three C-47 transports had landed at Quito and additional planes were made ready to fly in additional supplies.

The relief activity is a joint undertaking by the United States Air Force, Army and American National Red Cross. The Red Cross will reimburse the services for medical supplies sent to Ecuador.

President Truman sent President Plaza a message extending "heartfelt sympathy."

The estimate of property damage came from unofficial sources. The President said it still is impossible to give an official figure.

New quakes shook the stricken area today, but there were no additional reports of casualties or damage.

This was the latest breakdown of the death toll by towns and cities taken from official and unoficial sources:

Pelileo, 32,000; Patate, 1000 up-

Capital Airliner Landed Safely After Collision

Milwaukee, Aug. 7 (AP).—A Capital Airlines passenger plane with 20 aboard landed safely today after a midair collision with a small cabin plane over Maitland Field.

The smaller ship crashed after the collision, killing its pilot and sole occupant, Arthur Rapps, 32, Milwaukee.

Clarence Struck, a flight instructor at Maitland Field, said the small ship had just taken off and was circling the downtown lakefront airfield when it struck the right wing of the DC-3 airliner.

About 6 feet of the right wing tip was ripped off the DC-3. The small plane—a Cessna 140—went into a spin and crashed on the southwest corner of Maitland Field. The airliner which was passing over Maitland after coming in across Lake Michigan, continued on and came down safely at Mitchell Field, Milwaukee County Airport some six miles to the south, where it was scheduled to land.

The airliner was coming in from Muskegon, Mich., en route from Norfolk, Va., it also had stopped at Detroit.

Postwar Instruments Ease Detection of Heart Ailments

By N. S. Haseltine
Post Reporter

(Second of Six Articles)

What automobile owner would accept a motor check-up in which the mechanic rapped on the hood to sound out the engine's ills?

For years, chest thumping, a similar technique, was one of the chief diagnostic methods doctors used to confirm diseased conditions of the heart.

Chest thumping is still a ritual with many practitioners today, but admittedly is only an elementary test used mainly to uncover lung disorders rather than cardiac ones.

Today, precise tests outline the heart for visual study (X-ray); record its electrical currents (electrocardiography); trace functionings of the heart's internal valves with infusions of dyes (angiocardiography); and even extract blood samples from inside the heart for analysis (catheterization).

Two Post-War Weapons Now in Use

Two post-war weapons for detection and diagnosis of heart ills are the ballistocardiograph and the electrokymograph, latest products in the advancing science of pinpointing the sites of all forms of cardiac disorders. The former delicately registers the momentum of blood thrust at each heartbeat; the latter's scientifically recorded waves measure the movements of the heart at its borders.

Both are scientific worlds apart from percussion (chest thumping) which was first advocated in 1761 by Joseph Leopold Auenbrugger, physician son of a Viennese innkeeper. But the purposes are akin—to detect and diagnose heart ailments.

Harvard University's Dr. Paul D. White, expert in heart study, said of this quest:

"One of the greatest advances of all time in the study and treatment of heart disease, and probably the greatest advance of our own generation, has been the clear differentiation of heart disease into its various types and kinds."

One Nightrider Shot

Gunfire Routs Klan Parade In Southern Georgia Hamlet

Iron City, Ga., Aug. 7 (U.P.).—A nightriding Klansman was wounded early today when citizens of this south Georgia hamlet broke up a Ku Klux Klan parade with gunfire.

Police Chief Hubert Miller said townspeople opened fire on a 16-car caravan of robed Klansmen that passed through here shortly after midnight.

He said one Klansman was slightly hurt in the fusillade of bullets. Another nightrider was arrested when State patrolmen and county officers arrived from nearby Donalsonville as the procession reached the outskirts of town.

Last week Iron City passed a city ordinance against parades or assemblies of masked men. Miller said the Klansmen in last night's demonstration were robed but their faces were uncovered.

The anti-Klan ordinance was a personal triumph for Mayor C. L. Drake, who had said he barricaded his home and fought off a mob of hooded attackers last month.

Miller said "10 or 12" shots were fired from pistols and shotguns as the Klansmen rode into the ambush.

He said the streets were practically deserted when the parade arrived.

The police chief said he called for help when the shooting started. Three patrol cars and a car of county officers from Donaldsville answered the call.

Miller said Sheriff C. L. Chandler arested one of the Klansmen for carrying a concealed weapon. The sheriff, however, refused to reveal the nightriders' identity or otherwise discuss the incident.

"I'll do my talking in court," he said.

Miller said he did not learn the name of the wounded Klansman and did not believe that he was hurt seriously enough to require more than first aid treatment.

Some of the cars were damaged by bullets, he added. The automobiles bore Georgia and Florida license plates, according to Miller.

Kinship of Tragedy

Victim's New Grief Prompts Mother to Return Stolen $50

A woman who stole in desperation, following the burial of her child, has returned the money after learning her victim herself had recently undergone tragedy.

Recipient of the stolen $50 was Mrs. Clarence Reynolds of 2804 Myrtle ave. ne., who has been under doctor's care since August 1.

Mrs. Reynolds' handbag containing $50 in bills and a silver dollar keepsake was stolen from the washroom of a downtown department store 18 months ago.

She advertised at that time, pleading that at least the silver dollar, valued for sentimental reasons, be returned. Two days later, it was delivered to her in the mail.

Friday night Mrs. Reynolds received a telephone call.

"Do you remmeber the time your pocketbook was taken?" a woman's voice inquired on the other end of the wire.

Then without waiting for an answer, it continued: "It was my daughter took it. She had buried her little girl that day and was desperate. We are poor people but since then she has saved up the money."

The voice then described how the daughter had read of Mrs. Reynolds's misfortune and had decided to send her the money by registered mail.

Mrs. Reynolds sought to thank the speaker—to continue the conversation but a click and then silence signaled the woman had hung up.

The knock of the postman bearing a registered letter the following day heralded payment of the 18-month-old debt.

McCabe Suggests Firm Tax Easing

$372 Per Person

U. S. Tax Bill Sets Record During 1948

By The Associated Press

The American tax bill soared to a new record—$54,500,000,000—for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1948.

For each persons this averaged $372—also the highest ever.

This means all taxes, Federal, State and local.

The Census Bureau, reporting this last night, said the previous tax high was 53 billions for the year ended in mid-1945. Two years later, tax collections dropped to $49,600,000,000 or $344 per capita.

Nearly three fourths ($40,100,000,000)) of the 1948 tax total, or $274 per person, was collected by the Federal Government. State governments took $53 per capita; local governments the remaining $45.

The bureau's tax figures were on a net basis—after deduction of tax refunds. It said taxes accounted for 95 per cent of the $57,300,000,000 total of governmental revenue in fiscal 1948.

(Fees and other charges for services, surplus property sales, etc., provided $2,700,000,000).

Comparing fiscal 1948 (ended June 30) with the previous year, the three billion, though still below its 1945 peak of $43,400,000,000; State and local government revenue up to $17,900,000,000 from $15,300,000,000.

The State and local government totals shown include $1,500,000,000 in aid receipts from the Federal Government in 1948.

In the order of their prowess as revenue preducers stood:

1. Taxes on individual incomes, which took in $19,800,000,000 or more than one third of all government revenue in fiscal 1948.

2. Sales and gross receipts taxes and customs. They provided $12,100,000,000 in 1948, which was a gain of 7 per cent over 1947 and 113 per cent over 1942. The figure includes selective sales taxes such as those on gasoline, liquor and cigarettes as well as "general" sales taxes.

3. Corporation income taxes, which yielded $10,300,000,000—bettering their 1947 mark but falling one third below their record in 1945, when the excess profits tax was still in force.

The biggest single source of local government revenue was, as usual, property taxes. These took in $6,100,000,000 with local governments getting nearly $5,900,000,000 of it and States the rest. Property tax revenue was up 11 per cent from 1947 and 35 per cent from 1942.

By the United Press

Chairman Thomas B. McCabe of the Federal Reserve System suggested yesterday that Congress might consider easing taxes on corporations and the wealthy as part of a program to raise production and beat a depression.

He also suggested that Congress make a general review of the tax structure, that more people be induced to invest in sound businesses, and that the States consider carefully whether insurance companies should be allowed to invest more money in stocks.

The Pennsylvania Republican, banker and manufacturer, who was named to his present post by President Truman, outlined his views in response to requests from the Joint Senate-House Economic Committee and a Senate Banking Subcommittee.

Fits Board Pattern

He emphasized that his statements were his own but they fitted in with the recent general anti-recession pattern followed by the Federal Reserve Board of Governors. The latest board action, announced Friday, was to lower bank reserve requirements again, releasing another $1,800,000,000 in bank funds for potential business loans.

McCabe said the United States grew to its present predominant industrial position partly because of the willingness of individuals to risk their money in new enterprises. But in the past two years, he said, the stock market has been "sluggish" respite large savings available for investment.

He traced this to several factors, one of which he said was an increasing desire on the part of the public to save its money for a "rainy day" rather than to invest it in profit-making ventures.

Other Deterrents

Other causes, he said, are high taxes which discourage the will to invest; the tax-free status of State and local securities and insurance policies which draw much of the money of the well-to-do, and lack of general knowledge about stock buying.

McCabe also said some investors are not buying stocks because many companies are holding on to "a large proportion" of their profits rather than paying them out in dividends. He said that in 1948, "a year of abnormally high profits in relation to capital investment," corporations kept more than half their profits after taxes compared with less than a quarter in 1929.

Business concerns themselves, he said, have more incentive to get their money in the form of bank loans and long-term bond purchases than to issue new stocks because they can deduct their interest payments from their taxes as a business expense.

Optimist on U. S. Future

McCabe said he is a "confirmed optimist" about the Nation's future, and added that there is a new frontier:

"The technology of producing more and better goods with the resources we know are available and the technology of distributing those goods on a mass basis for the constant improvement of the standard of living of all."

To realize this "potential," he said, "we need to be concerned with assuring a steady and adequate flow of savings into equity ownership."

McCabe said there may be a long-run need for new financing agencies to get the savings of large groups of the public into individual firms, especially small ones lacking means to market their stocks. He said three such types of agencies deserve consideration—private financing companies; special community funds and development corporations; and a new-type of "capital bank" which would add to the Nation's banking structure a set of new banks to get private savings into the hands of business.

Donaldson Hits Plan to Split Postal Setup

Postmaster General Jesse M. Donaldson yesterday strongly objected to a Hoover Commission recommendation that the Postoffice be decentralized into 15 separate regions.

In a letter to Chairman McClellan (D., Ark.) of the Senate Committee on Executive Expenditures Donaldson said such a move would be both "impractical" and "expensive."

"If the proposal were practicable, it is conservatively estimated that the yearly cost of operation would exceed five million dollars, exclusive of additional cost due to decentralization of accounting procedures," he wrote.

"An expenditure of one-fifth that amount to provide for a proper reorganization of the departmental service in Washington would be far more effective and more in keeping with the needs of the service."

Donaldson disagreed also with a Hoover Commission recommendation to prohibit the President from naming an official of a political party as Postmaster General.

He turned thumbs down on another proposal to create a director of posts who would be the operating head of the Postoffice.

Instead, he said, it would be better to set up a deputy Postmaster General whose rank would be comparable to that of undersecretaries of other departments. Such a suggestion is carried in President Truman's Reorganization Plan No. 3, which would reshuffle the Postoffice.

All other Hover recommendations dealing with the Postoffice were favored by the Postmaster General.

Among these were proposals to eliminate Senate confirmation of postmasters, subject the department to the Government Corporation Control Act to standardize budgeting and accounting procedures, and empower the Postmaster General to determine rates for certain services to make them self-supporting.

AMG to Permit GI Snapshots in Berlin

Berlin, Aug. 7 (AP).—The American Military Government informed GI camera fans today they can take snapshots on Army-conducted tour in the Soviet sector of Berlin.

The announcement said the AMG had been assured by the Russians that this was allowed. Excluded are only Soviet military installations.

Previously the AMG itself had asked that no cameras be taken to the Soviet sector on conducted tours to avoid possible incidents.

Takes Her Out to the Ball Game . . .

MRS. CARLETON S. HADLEY WITH VICE PRESIDENT ALBEN W. BARKLEY AT GAME

St. Louis, Aug. 7 (U.P.).—Vice President Alben W. Barkley went to the ball game today with Mrs. Carleton S. Hadley, and a friend of the attractive St. Louis widow said the two are "very fond of each other."

Barkley occupied a field box with Mrs. Hadley at the game between the St. Louis Cardinals and the New York Giants.

Dr. E. M. Connor, friend of Mrs. Hadley, said "they are very fond of each other, but there's nothing in the wind yet."

Asked for comment on his reported romance, Barkley told reporters:

"I find Mrs. Hadley a very charming and lovely woman and she has very nice friends. I enjoy being with them."

The Vice President flew here from his Paducah, Ky., home.

public schools only. Cardinal Spellman accused her of a long record of anti-Catholicism and charged her with "discrimination unworthy of an American mother."

On August 5 Mrs. Roosevelt and Cardinal Spellman issued joint statements clarifying their stands on the issue of Federal aid which were apparently designed to quell the bitterness arising out of their exchanges. The statements were issued after a telephone conference between the two.

In this clarifying statement, Cardinal Spellman said that "we are not asking for general public support of religious schools."

He said the Catholic Church believes in Federal aid for "needy States and needy children." He also asserted that "Congress should guarantee, as it did in the school lunch act, that all children of whatever race, creed or color, no matter what school they attend, will share alike in the 'auxiliary services' for which these Federal funds are spent in the States."

Referring to the cardinal's denunciation of Mrs. Roosevelt, Bishop Oxnam asserted that the "personal attack upon one of the greatest women of American history . . . reveals the methods that we may expect from men determined to master American life."

The Methodist bishop noted that Representative Barden was "attacked viciously" but "refused to bow to clerical intimidation."

Cardinal Spellman was invited to appear on one of Hart's broadcasts to discuss the issue of Federal aid to education, but declined "because of the pressure of many duties." His letter refusing the invitation was read at the beginning and end of the broadcast with Bishop Oxnam.

World Activities Hit

From the specific issue of Federal aid to schools Bishop Oxnam branched into criticism of the world activities of the Catholic Church.

When the Pope speaks, he asserted, "he speaks to all Roman Catholics just as Stalin speaks to all Communists." Thus, he continued, "Roman Catholic political parties in European nations follow the Vatican line just as Communist parties follow the Moscow line."

"Many people do not know that the Roman Catholic Church is fighting for its life in Europe. It has become so interlocked in political affairs of state, so encumbered with vast land holdings, and so allied with military and feudal reaction that the common people are turning from it," he went on.

The church, he said, "appears to have abandoned hope of winning by the weapons of the spirit, and seems ready to summon the world to holy war to salvage its power, its property, and its prestige."

"The Kingdom of God cannot be established by the methods of war, nor can we destroy the Communist challenge to liberty by war," the Methodist clergyman declared.

Discussing the "striking parallel" between world activities of the Communist Party and the Roman Catholic Church, Bishop Oxnam declared:

"Both are totalitarian. Both seek control of the minds of men everywhere. Both practice excommunication, character assassination, and economic reprisals."

"Neither Moscow nor Rome knows what tolerance means. Both demand blind, unthinking loyalty. Neither Moscow nor Rome believe in the separation of church and state. Both Moscow and Rome interfere in the affairs of other states.

"To Shackle Minds"

"Both Moscow and Rome seek to shackle the minds of those they control by telling them what they can read, what movies they can see, what newspapers they must take."

"Neither Rome nor Moscow can brook opposition," he declared. "And both Moscow and Rome have perfected the Hitler technique of repeating prevarications often enough and big enough to insure their acceptance. Both seek to divide and rule, they create separatism."

He criticized as "separatism" the formation of separate organizations for Catholic veterans, workers, firemen and policemen.

This division of American life, he said, raises the question of whether this separatism is "preparation for building a Roman Catholic political party in the United States? Are we to have a political party here that follows the dictates of the Vatican line?" he asked.

"Clerical control has cursed many lands, has destroyed religious freedom and led to conflict," he continued.

"We are resolved that clericalism shall not take root here," the Methodist bishop clergyman declared.

He urged newspaper owners to have courage "to print the story the Church seeks to kill," and the motion picture industry to "face the Roman Catholic boycott and make its own decisions, refusing to debase a great art at the dictation of a hierarchy."

The broadcast was made by transcription from Laconia, N. H. where the bishop is resting after attending the sessions of the Central Council of the World Council of Churches at Chichester, Eng.

Bishop Oxnam is one of the six presidents of the World Council of Churches. He is also a vice president of Protestants and Other Americans United for Separation of Church and State, an organization which has vigorously opposed use of Federal funds for any service to private or parochial schools.

FTC Accuses Cosmetic Firm In Trust Suit

Revlon Products Corp., New York manufacturer of cosmetics, has beben charged by the Federal Trade Commission with violating the Clayton Antitrust Act.

In its complaint the FTC said the corporation has been using exclusive-dealing contracts in the sale of cosmetics in violation of Section 3 of the act.

Revlon has 20 days in which to answer the complaint.

The corporation is described in the complaint as "one of the larger distributors in the cosmetics industry" with sales totaling more than eight million dollars in in 1944.

According to the complaint, the effect of Revlon's requirements that jobbers of its line of cosmetic products not deal in competitive products "may be to substantially lessen competition" or "tend to create a monopoly."

The complaint states the corporation sells its products to about 170 jobber distributors. Although it also sells directly to department stores and retail drug stores, the complaint describes the jobber business as "one of the more important methods of distribution," since the jobbers sell to the entire beauty shop trade.

The complaint challenges as unlawful Revlon's alleged practice of selling and contracting to sell its products on condition that the jobbers shall not use or deal in competitive products. It cites contracts whereby jobbers have been required to agree to carry only Revlon manicure preparations, to clear their stock of competitive polishes and manicure preparations and not to reorder such items.

How to Pay for GOP Races, Problem of New Chairman

By The Associated Press

How to pay for a 1950 congressional campaign which some members think will make or break the Republican Party has shaped up as GOP Chairman Guy G. Gabrielson's No. 1 problem.

Picked to head the party in a knockdown battle last week, the New Jersey businessman is reported looking around for some way to get the contributions rolling in.

It has been a case of everything going out and nothing coming in for the Republicans. Thus far this year they have spent $444,000 and taken in only $71,000.

Harold Talbott, finance committee head, told party members he hasn't been able to interest contributors in putting up cash since January when the National Committee split wide open in an effort to oust Chairman Hugh D. Scott, jr.

The word he got from prospective contributors, Talbott told a reporter, was that his party members would have to quit rowing among themselves if they expected any financial help.

Gabrielson faces the same sort of split in the National Committee membership that finally forced Scott's resignation last week. He won over Axel J. Beck, a newcomer from South Dakota, by a margin of 52 to 47 votes.

Significantly, perhaps, New York, Pennsylvania and California, where the heaviest sugar of contributions often comes from, went with Beck against the new chairman.

Against these, Gabrielson racked up Illinois and Ohio.

In 31 States where Republicans have some chance of winning in campaign years, Beck took 15, Gabrielson 13 and 3 split their votes. Thus the areas where the party is something more than a skeleton organization were sharply divided on the leadership.

Gabrielson's success as a peacemaker between these factions may have a direct bearing on the 1950 campaign.

Leading Republicans left little doubt they think the party will be in a tough situation if it doesn't make substantial House and Senate gains as a preliminary to the 1952 presidential race.

Representative Clarence Brown of Ohio said that "if we don't win in 1950, there isn't much use of talking about 1952."

Former Gov. Ralph Gates of Indiana put it this way: "The Republican Party lives or dies in 1950."

Outside of plans for regional conferences, the Republicans didn't have much to report in the way of national preparations for next year's campaign.

Beck has been handling arrangements for a farm conference in Sioux City, Iowa, September 21. It may be broadened to take in other subjects.

New England members are booming a conference in Hartford, Conn., October 21 and 22, where Senator Vandenberg of Michigan and former Gov. Harold E. Stassen of Minnesota have been booked as the star speakers.

Manchurian Pact With Reds Assailed

In Shanghai

Red Chinese Silent on White Paper

Shanghai, Aug. 7 (AP).—The handful of foreigners in this Communist city who have heard about the United States White Paper on China described it today as a final writing-off of the Nationalists as a hope for a free China.

The Communists have made no comment on the document, and the newspaper have carried nothing whatever, either of news or comment.

(In Canton the highest official to comment was Gen. Chen Cheng, Nationalist governor and commander of Formosa. He said, "in the past we had a psychology of a subject colonial people and relied on the foreigner for everything. The American White Paper has awakened us. We must now start on the road of self-help. Hence, publication of the White Paper will not cause us harm.")

The Shanghai foreigners who had hoped for better things under the Reds admitted they had been disappointed so far. Many are ready to abandon businesses and leave China when possible, but there is little appetite for a return of the Nationalists.

Most foreigners remaining in Shanghai believe China is doomed to go through a period of travail and trouble beyond anything yet experienced since the Japanese invasion. Most of them feel it is apt to be a generation before China can hope to get on her feet again.

Because of their heavy investments in China, the British have been doggedly trying to ride out the storm, but one by one, the British are losing heart.

The Communists appear determined to go through with their program to make China self-contained. Most hard-headed economists don't think they can do it, but it almost certainly will ring the death knell for the seaports where foreign investments are concentrated.

The spread of communism seems not so dependent on American policy as on the success or failure of the Reds in the practical job they have so audaciously taken on and for which they so obviously are not equipped.

Canton, China, Aug. 7 (AP).—The Chinese Nationalist Government today strongly protested to Russia against the recently announced Soviet trade pact with Communist Manchuria.

A note handed to Vladimir Vaskov, Soviet charge d'affaires, by George Yeh, acting foreign minister, charged the trade agreement violated the Russian-Chinese treaty of 1945. It said the Russian Government would be held responsible for all consequences.

The 1945 treaty gave Russia special privileges in Manchuria but recognized Nationalist sovereignty. Today's note said Russia agreed to give support and aid solely to the Nationalist government.

Chinese Reds Forced To Fight Guerillas

Nanking, Aug. 7 (AP).—The Chinese Communists are mobilizing to fight widespread guerilla resistance that extends behind their lines from Manchuria into south China.

Thousands of Red troops are reliably reported being moved north to augment Manchurian and north China garrisons. Their mission is to suppress guerillas and dissidents opposing Communist officials in the countryside.

Neutral military observers do not regard the guerilla movement as posing any immediate counter-revolutionary threat to the Red regime. They believe it is not coordinated by the Nationalists but is more of a localized resistance to Communist tax collectors.

These observers stress, however, that the Nationalists never were able to overcome a similar problem.

Communists Seen Driving on 2 Ports

Hong Kong, Aug. 7 (U.P.).—The Chinese Communists appeared today to have opened up a new drive down the east coast toward the ports of Foochow and Amoy.

The two ports are on the Formosa strait and have been important debarkation points for government troops arriving from Formosa to reinforce the hard-pressed nationalists.

The Nationalist news agency reported the Communists captured Shuikow, 40 miles northwest of Foochow and said there was heavy fighting at nearby Mintsing and Yungtai, about 30 miles southwest of Foochow.

The central China front was quiet.

Defeat Today Of Last Curb On Aid Seen

By the United Press

Democratic leaders yesterday said they are confident the last major barrier to Senate approval of the Administration's $5,647,724,000 foreign aid bill will be cleared away today.

They predicted the Senate will defeat a proposal by Senator Kem (R., Mo) to deny Marshall Plan funds to nations which nationalize their basic industries in the future.

Democratic leaders conceded that a large group of Senators agree with Kem that nationalization is retarding European recovery. But they said most of the Senate seems to agree the Missouri Senator's approach would do more harm than good.

They pointed out the British already have interpreted the Kem amendment as an attempt to meddle in Britain's internal affairs.

Democratic Leader Scott W. Lucas (Ill.) set the stage for the test on the Kem amendment last week when he challenged it on grounds it had no place in a money bill.

The Senate's presiding officer upheld Lucas, but Kem immediately appealed his ruling to the full Senate. That issue will be decided by a simple majority. If Kem loses, two thirds of the Senate would have to vote to take up the amendment.

Dockers in London Threaten New Strike

London, Aug. 7 (U.P.).—The port of London was threatened with a new dock strike today by the same men who led an unofficial walkout which recently tied up the harbor for more than a month.

The stevedores, at a mass meeting called by the "lock-out committee" which organized the last strike, voted to stop if six discharged dock workers were not rehired.

Precautions Taken as Chiefs Of U. S. Staffs Visit Vienna

Vienna, Austria, Aug. 7 (U.P.).—A special railroad train, which was preceded by a pilot train, was provided today in an extraordinary security measure to bring the United States chiefs of staff to Vienna through a 20-mile stretch of the Soviet occupation zone.

By taking a train instead of motoring, the chiefs of staff missed "Welcome" signs which had been painted for them along the road through the Russian zone.

"There is no room for war mongers," said one of the signs painted on house walls. Another was addressed personally to Gen. Omar N. Bradley, Army chief of staff, inviting him to go home.

Bradley, Admiral Louis Denfeld, chief of Naval operations, and Gen. Hoyt S. Vandenberg, Air Force chief of staff, will hold a series of conferences here Monday before they start back for Washington by plane.

Before they left Paris, Denfeld emphasized they had formed no final opinions on organizing Europe's defenses. He said discussions on the Atlantic Pact would continue in Washington "sometime in the future."

Hungarians Will Vote on Red Republic

Budapest, Hungary, Aug. 7 (AP).—The National Assembly has been called to meet Wednesday to approve a new constitution formally declaring Hungary a people's republic.

(Until now Hungary, although under Communist domination, has had a government legally depending on a parliamentary majority.

(The Budapest radio, heard in Trieste, said the constitution declares the state's power is derived from the working class and that "all the resources and means of production of the country are the property of the state." Private property is recognized only when it does not conflict with "the general interests" of the state. Written into the constitution, said the broadcast, was praise of Russia for "the liberation of Hungary.")

Poles Pack Churches for Archbishop

Warsaw, Poland, Aug. 7 (AP).—Roman Catholic churches throughout Poland celebrated today the twenty-fifth anniversary of the ordination of Archbishop Stefan Weszynski, the Polish primate.

The churches were packed.

Parishioners of at least one priest were urged in a sermon to "pray for the Pope and the nation."

(Most Poles are Catholics. Their government is run by Communists. A Vatican decree July 13 ordered the excommunication of Catholics who are militant Communists.)

Editorials in the Polish press praised a new 17-article decree, ordering penalties up to death for any one violating a citizen's "freedom of conscience."

Heavy Crops Anticipated For Europe

London, Aug. 7 (U.P.).—Eastern Europe is expecting its biggest harvest since the war and Western Europe plans on a crop which should be plentiful enough to insure against a food crisis this winter, a survey showed today.

From the golden fields of grain around the cathedral town of Chartres in France to the rolling plains behind the Iron Curtain, 1949 harvest prospects were almost universally good.

The only serious trouble spots were in Scandinavia, where potato crops were almost entirely rained or frozen out, and Spain and Portugal, where the worst drought in a century will cause grain crops to be only 20 to 50 per cent of normal.

GOP Offers Cooperation

Asia and a free Asia is vital to the existence of a free world."

Meanwhile, Far Eastern talk of a non-Communist regional pact was spotlighted by preparations for the arrival here Monday of President Elpidio Quirino of the Philippines. State Department officials displayed new interest in the suggestions.

Quirino has been one of the principal advocates of such a grouping of nations in the Western Pacific and Southeast Asia. Contrary to earlier indications, it now seems possible he may discuss his ideas with President Truman. He may get a more sympathetic response than has been indicated to date in Administration public statements.

(In Manila, a reliable source said that shortly before Quirino's departure a message was received from the State Department lauding his effort to cement a nonmilitary union in Southeast Asia.

(The warmer State Department attitude was attributed in Manila to quiet steps by Quirino to drop Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek of Nationalist China as an active partner in a revised version of a Pacific union.)

Martin's statement was directed at the State Department's White Paper review of China policy. Along with it, Acheson had blasted the Nationalist regime as a failure, but proposed to support the Chinese people against Communism.

The State Department now is at work on development of new Far Eastern moves expected by some officials to include aid to underground or other anti-Communist forces opposing the Red sweep.

Martin said the White Paper "is a confession of inexcusable failure." He said "our desertion of China at Yalta" is fully admitted.

After the Republican 80th Congress stepped in to revive China aid, the Administration procrastinated in sending aid until after Manchuria and North China had fallen, Martin said.

The document amounts to "an Oriental Munich," Martin said. Then, turning to the subject of future policy, he said he saw no intention of the State Department to work out China policy on bipartisan lines such as have been successful on the European front.

Vanderberg's White Paper comment Saturday made no mention of a possible bipartisan approach. He said it must be made clear we are backing the Chinese people, dealing with realities and refusing to accept the results of aggression.

time to make the same kind of a survey in the Far East that they have been making in Europe.

In view of this, he "strongly urged" the two secretaries to order back MacArthur and Badger to testify "on the Far Eastern phases of a problem which is global in character."

To Report Wednesday

The joint chiefs—Gen. Omar Bradley, Admiral Louis Denfeld and Gen. Hoyt Vandenberg—are due to report on their European trip to the combined committees Wednesday.

Knowland acknowledged to reporters that numeroues attempts have been made unsuccessfully in the past to bring MacArthur back to testify before congressional committees.

But he said the situation "is at a very critical juncture" and he is "hopeful that under the circumstances" MacArthur will consent to leave Japan temporarily.

Knowland's amendment would provide military assistance to the Communist foes in China provided an American mission was given authority to advise the Nationalist government as to its "effective use."

Council Chief Rumors Grow

Strasbourg, France, Aug. 7 (AP).—Winston Churchill of Britain, Edouard Herriot of France and Paul-Henri Spaak of Belgium were mentioned today among the possibilites for first president of the Consultative Assembly of the Council of Europe.

Ministers from 10 European countries meet here Monday to launch the organization which may eventually produce a United States of Europe. The 10 will form a committee of ministers of the council of Europe and will meet for about a week.

Defense Chief Set To Testify Today

a policy statement that abuses and improper influences won't be tolerated in Government contract letting.

The subcomittee set out to check whether favoritism has figured in activities of gents who help get contracts for others.

Recognizing the problem of the businessman in coping with the maze of Government agencies, Hoey said:

"The subcommittee wants to acknowledge at the beginning that business both large and small is entitled to legitimate representation in dealing with the Government.

"We are not critical of the practice itself, but merely of some of the abuses which occur in the practice, and it is these abuses which the subcommittee hopes to curtail.

"In some considerable measure, businessmen, especially small businessmen, due to red tape and the inherent bigness of present-day Government, sometimes feel they must hire a peddler of influence in desperation.

"One of the aims of the subcommittee is to attempt to improve methods of procurement and to make it easier, especially for the small businessmen, to do business with the Government."

The subcommittee, he said, has a bill in tentative form aimed at correcting the situation.

Subcommittee members have reported that businessmen have testified privately that John Maragon, a key figure in the inquiry, was able to help them out with contracts by getting in touch with White House personnel. Maragon has denied any improper dealings or being a "per center."

Maragon, who once had a White House pass, is on the list of witnesses to be called for public testimony.

Hoey plans to read the subcommittee's policy statement at the start of the hearings.

He said the subcommittee plans to:

1. "Acquaint itself with specific examples which will highlight certain abuses needing correction."

2. "Serve notice on others engaged in committing like abuses that they will not be tolerated."

Said He Paid $1000

The Senate investigation was touched off by Grindle's story he paid $1000 to James V. Hunt, a former Army officer and War Assets Administration employe, to help seek a Government contract.

Grindle said Hunt claimed friendship with the two Army procurement officers who since have been suspended pending further investigation. They are Maj. Gen. Alden H. Waitt, chief of the Chemical Corps, and Herman Feldman, the Quartermaster General.

Hunt contends his work is legitimate and has denied he ever attempted to sell influence.

Secretary of the Army Gray, relieving Waitt and Feldman from duty, said they failed to exhibit judgment "expected of persons in their positions."

Both Waitt and Feldman are expected to testify at the hearings. The subcommittee wants Hunt to appear, but he underwent an operation last week and his doctor has not said whether he will be able to testify.

Allied Forces Will Get U. S. Jet Fighters

Frankfurt, Germany, Aug. 7 (U.P.).—The Air Force disclosed today that Thunderjet fighters—barely off the secret list—will begin arriving in Germany at the end of the year to support ground armies marshalled under the Atlantic Pact.

Lt. Gen. John K. Cannon, U. S. Air Commander in Europe, said today that one of his two fighter groups will be equipped with the Thunderjets—souped up versions of the F84 jet fighter—"at the turn of the year."

The other fighter group already is equipped with F80 Shooting Stars, a plane not as suited to support of ground forces as the F84 type E.

Cannon's disclosure came after announcement by the U. S. joint chiefs of staff that they expect American occupation forces in Germany will be assigned roles under the Atlantic Pact. They also announced the U. S. Airforce would become an all-jet fighter force.

The new planes will be assigned to the crack 86th Fighter Group.

FIRST GLIMPSE

of a BRAND-NEW IDEA

HERE is a hint of something wonderful that's coming your way.

It is more than just the front end of the new Buick SPECIAL. It's a fresh new front end treatment—a "Buick first"—and it makes so much sense that it's safe to say it will start a new trend in styling.

Look it over and you'll see what we mean.

Sturdy vertical bars, attached to the bumper, form the grille—and at the same time serve as bumper-guards, which makes it impossible for you to "lock horns" with the car ahead of you.

The bumper no longer projects beyond the grille—so inches are saved in the over-all length of the car.

Parking lights are deeply recessed. The grille is made up of bars heavy enough to absorb all normal impact—and they're individually replaceable to cut repair costs in the unlikely event of damage.

Bumper, grille, bumper-guards and parking lights all become part of a single, unified design.

But—stunning as this brilliant bit of designing is—it's just a hint of all the new things you'll see when the new SPECIAL goes on display.

Even the price is good news. So watch for the full announcement—coming very soon—and you'll agree that more than ever, Buick's the one for you.

Hawaiians Moving To Seize Docks

Honolulu, Aug. 7 (AP).—The Government of Hawaii today was preparing to seize the docks and go into the stevedoring business in an attempt to end the Territory's 99-day-old longshore strike. Indications were several days might elapse before it got going.

"There are many problems," said Ben Rush, chairman of the Board of Harbor Commissioners. "For instance, we cannot put a man aboard a ship until we get several kinds of insurance."

The 2000 strikers of the CIO International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union have said they will not work for the Government. Their President, Harry Bridges, who is here, said the union intended to challenge in court the law under which the Government is acting.

Bridges has said also that the Hawaiian Legislature cannot force handling of Hawaiian cargoes on the Pacific Coast, where his union is dominant.

Emergency Proclaimed

The dock seizure law, aimed at ending a strike which has brought the business of this island Territory almost to a standstill, was passed overwhelmingly yesterday morning by the Territorial Legislature.

Under it, Gov. Ingram M. Stainback yesterday afternoon formally proclaimed a state of emergency and called on the ILWU and the stevedoring industry to resume operations.

The proclamation was issued after a three-hour meeting of the Territorial Attorney General's staff and stevedoring company officials. There was no discussion with the union, which already had announced its stand.

Attorney General Walter D. Ackerman, jr., said stevedoring companies declined to state their reactions to the law until their attorneys could study it.

Now Loading Sugar

Rush, the Harbor Commissioner, said it appeared the Territory could not use the new nonunion firm, Hawaiian Stevedores, Ltd., but perhaps it could contract for its personnel.

This company now is loading sugar and canned pineapple for shipment to the mainland East Coast sometime next week. The ILWU has called it a strikebreaking operation. Nineteen persons were injured last month in a raid by strikers on the company offices.

The new law calls for Government operation of stevedoring services for a maximum of 180 days or until the strike ends.

The Government is to hire strikers so far as possible, paying the prestrike wage of $1.40 an hour. The strike began May 1 to enforce a union demand for $1.72 an hour.

Storm Takes Heavy Toll in Shanghai Area

Shanghai, Aug. 7 (U.P.).—Belated reports from the Pootung and Nanhwei areas indicated today that from 1000 to 2000 persons were drowned during the recent typhoon when high waves smashed protective sea walls.

At Nanhwei, the reports said, high tides broke the dikes and flooded 11 villages. One report said 2000 persons were washed away by the flood and that 180,000 were left homeless.

The newspaper Sin Wen Jih Pao said all livestock were drowned, and the Communist Emancipation daily reported that 5000 women and children fled the scene and that 40,000 were homeless, and without food or clothing.

Lightning Sets New Blaze In Montana as Toll Hits 13

Helena, Mont., Aug. 7 (U.P.).—Lightning started a new fire today 30 miles from the canyon where the Northwest's worst forest fire in 40 years roared out of control. Thirteen of the hundreds of fire fighters battling the flames have been killed.

Twelve of them were "smokejumpers," fire fighters who parachuted into the path of the flames which have destroyed more than 400 acres of forest.

Forest Service officials, who called for more volunteers, pulled weary men off the fire line at the canyon to fight the new blaze before it, too, could get beyond control.

Five hundred firefighters, many of them on the firelines since Friday, hacked out fire breaks time after time only to watch the flames leap across the unburned timber.

The fire, fanned by wind, was burning so intensely the flames seemd to leap as far as 50 yards across gulches and ravines. The Forest Service said the fire was a "long way" from being under control.

camping on the top of a hill. They were preparing to move on, to get as far away as possible from the scene of disaster, hurried on in panic by the spasmodic tremors that are still felt.

A dazed father confessed to me that he had abandoned his 6-year-old daughter alive in the ruins of his small town.

He said, "She called out to me through a hole in the rubble, 'It is I, Papaito. Bring me a little water.' My heart was breaking, but it was humanly impossible for me to dig down to her."

There were many other cases like this—people being swallowed up by the earth before their horrified and helpless relatives and friends.

River Beds Shifted, Entire Town Erased

Quito, Ecuador, Aug. 7 (U.P.).—Dr. Cristobal Cornejo said today the earthquake changed the entire landscape.

Sides of mountains slid down on dwellings, erasing them. The course of rivers and streams was changed. Long cracks, some a foot wide, opened in the earth.

"Without question," he said, "this is the worst disaster in our history. Its magnitude is indescribable and unbelievable.

"Pelileo has simply disappeared. Where the town once stood there is nothing but a wasteland of rubble. The countryside is unrecognizable."

He said that because morale had broken down, authorities hesitated to dig up bodies from the ruins at Ambato, fearing an increase in the horror and confusion.

wards; Ambato, 400 to 500; Pillaro, more than 20; Latacunga, 11; Guano, 10.

A new disaster occurred in the quake area yesterday when a mercy plane crashed and killed 34 persons aboard.

In his broadcast, the President said:

"My country has been the victim of a tragic occurrence, a major earthquake, which destroyed the city of Ambato and the towns of Pelileo, Pillaro, Guano, Patate, and also small villages in the province of Tungurahua.

"Every farm house has been destroyed. The town of Pelileo and all the country around it has been completely destroyed. Just to give you an idea of the magnitude of the catastrophe, in one town, of about 3500 residents (Pelileo), about 300 survived. The communities were among the most industrious in Ecuador.

"Our loss in millions of dollars cannot be estimated. Up to noon today several thousands of people have lost their lives, but we have not lost our courage and we have dedicated all our will power, all our resources and all our devotion to help our brothers in distress.

"My people's gratitude for your generous help that is beginning to reach us from our sister republics in the Americas."

Victims of the mercy plane crash were identified as four government officials, the crew of 2 and 28 Shell Oil Co. workers.

The workers were being taken in a company plane from Shell-Mera, a company outpost supply base, to Ambato to see how their families had fared in that city, where 400 to 500 persons were reported killed Friday.

Airlift Brings Supplies

Ambato felt a new quake today—the third in three days—at 1 a. m. and Riobamba was shaken at 5:30 a. m.

The shocks came as rescue workers, toiling around the clock, dug into debris in seach for more bodies. Scores of funerals were held.

The government has ordered quick burial to prevent epidemics.

The injured—uncounted thousans—are being treated and supplied in the quake-ripped area 50-odd miles south of Quito by rescue workers using an airlift. Some are being removed.

Almost every report of casualties from the stricken cities and towns emphazied that the death figures can be expected to go higher as digging into the debris goes on.

Many are reported dead at Riobamba, but no figures were available. Other wrecked villages where casualty totals still were awaited included Pujili, Banos, Pansaleo, Mocha, Cujibies, Cevallos, Guaranda, San Adres, Cochimabma, Guamote, Santa Rose and Salcedo.

As far as can be determined, no foreigners were killed in the earthquake.

Graphic eyewitness accounts of the earthquake began to flow into Quito with arrivals from the stricken area.

These said that in the western zone of Tungurahua Province between Ambato and Banos at least 25 hamlets virtually disappeared. The area was described as a cemetery where the odor of death predominated.

The eyewitnesses said the number of persons buried along the slopes of Tungurahua Volcano may never be known.

"In Pelileo I witnessed things that even the most dantesque imagination could not believe," President Plaza said. "More than 100 persons buried in the debris were begging for water. Survivors handed them the precious liquid through chinks in the debris which could not be removed."

One searcher said he could scarcely believe his eyes when he reached his native city of Pelileo. He got his bearings when he reached a park in the center of the town. He made his way over piles of debris, bodies of the dead, and large crevices in the earth to what had once been his family home. Only a small porch remained upright—the only means of identification.

After hours of digging he uncovered his father, sister, sister-in-law and three nephews—all alive. But five other members of his family remained buried and beyond rescue.

Strange Compromise

An unnamed member of Representative Harris' subcommittee has sent up a trial balloon suggesting that Congress give the District a voteless delegate in the House instead of home rule. The anonymous legislator is undoubtedly right in saying that the subcommittee is under obligation to do something quick. But how could he possibly suppose that a delegate in Congress could take the place of an elected local government? Such a delegate could neither satisfy the yearning of local residents to control their own municipal affairs nor relieve Congress in any major degree of the burden it now carries as Washington's city council.

As an interim step toward full representation for the District in Congress, there is much to be said for the idea of letting the District send a nonvoting delegate to the House. The District had such a delegate under the so-called territorial government in the 1870s. One of Representative Auchincloss' bills in the Eightieth Congress called for restoration of the delegate. The idea was finally dropped because it seemed to complicate and possibly weaken the home-rule bill. Only citizens who are legally domiciled in the District could properly vote for a delegate in Congress. Since the Kefauver bill permits District residents not legally domiciled here to vote for District councilmen, it was feared that to set up a special electorate for the delegate would be confusing.

We fully agree with the conclusion that the idea of electing a District delegate should in no way retard the cause of home rule. It is foolish to suppose that such a sop to the people of the District could quiet the demand for an elected local government. On the contrary, the paramount duty of any District delegate that might be elected would be to put through Congress a home-rule bill. But there is no reason to wait for a delegate to do this. Senator Kefauver has put through the Senate a sound and practicable plan. All that the House needs to do is to approve it with such perfecting amendments as it finds desirable. To raise the delegate issue at all at this time would be a cheap evasion of the question of home rule on which the people expect a forthright answer.

ECA And The Senate

After considerable delay caused by parliamentary entanglements, the Senate is expected to take a final vote on the ECA appropriation bill early this week, probably today. It has rejected three crippling amendments attached to the bill by the Appropriations Committee but has not yet acted on another mischievous amendment that would forbid ECA to aid any nation that hereafter acquires or operates any basic industries, other than those already acquired. This antisocialism amendment is aimed particularly at Great Britain. Its sponsor, Senator Kem, tries to justify it on the ground that Britain's nationalization drive is slowing down recovery. Any such proposal would, of course, entail intolerable interference in the domestic affairs of a foreign country and convert an economic recovery program into an instrument of political oppression. Since the amendment is patently legislation attached to an appropriation bill, it will probably be thrown out, as were the McClellan farm-surplus amendment and the proposed 50-million-dollar loan to Spain.

The only one of the three important rejected amendments that was discussed on its merits before being rejected would have denied the use of ECA counterpart funds to any country failing to comply with any treaty with the United States or permitting any area dependent on it to fail to comply. By a surprise the Senate overrode the Vice President's ruling that this amendment was out of order, and, except for Senator Lucas' insistence that the question at issue be debated on its merits, it apparently would have passed. The purpose was to compel France, under threat of a severe penalty, to prevent alleged discrimination against a few American businessmen located in Morocco. Senator Dulles pointed out that a proposal of this kind would have violated all orderly processes of treaty enforcement, and Senator Vandenberg warned that it would also have serious repercussions on this country and the aid program.

Since the McClellan and McCarran amendments were discarded on technical grounds, the Senate's votes on these amendments do not accurately reflect majority opinion as to their merits. Nevertheless, in course of the debate many Senators expressed their views about the effect of such proposals, and no doubt their arguments influenced the voting on the Vice President's rulings. It is also encouraging to note that the Administration was ably supported by some Republican Senators who made it plain that they objected in principle to amendments that would have converted the ECA into an American farm-aid program, required it to advance funds to a nation that is not a party to the self-help and mutual cooperation commitments of participating countries, and directed it to penalize countries presumed by us to be guilty of violating their treaty obligations.

With these dangerous amendments sidetracked, there is every reason to hope that the antisocialism amendment will also be consigned to oblivion and that the appropriation bill when passed will impose no unduly hampering restrictions on Administrator Hoffman's organization. Whether the outcome would have been different if all these amendments had been considered on their merits is a moot question. At least it is evident that many members of Congress realize the importance of divorcing our foreign-aid program from schemes for self-aggandizement and avoiding its employment as a means of arresting the spread of nationalization or socialism in aided countries.

Crisis In Hawaii

The showdown has come at last between the territorial government of Hawaii and Mr. Harry Bridges' Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union. The stevedores' strike conducted by the union, and now well into its fourth month, has paralyzed the export and import trade and virtually disrupted the economy of the islands and has precipitated a state of affairs almost comparable to a revolutionary crisis. This, in fact, is said to be the real purpose of the strike, which has been described by Major General Chennault and others as part of a tactical move by Communists in support of Soviet plans in the Far East.

Various attempts at mediation and efforts to force intervention by Washington have come to nothing. The employing interests have offered an increase in the hourly wage rate, but have steadily refused to submit their case to neutral arbitration. Saturday the Hawaiian Legislature, meeting in extraordinary session, enacted a bill authorizing the territorial government to seize the docks and take possession of the stevedoring corporations. Governor Stainback immediately proclaimed a state of emergency and called upon the strikers to return to work. The union had already voted to ignore such an order. Mr. Bridges, who arrived last Friday in Honolulu to take personal charge of the situation, has asserted that, proclamation or no proclamation, the ships will not be loaded or unloaded.

The next move in this explosive situation is, therefore, the Governor's. The emergency legislation provides for injunctions, forbidding the union and its members to interfere with Government operation of the docks. Mr. Bridges says the constitutionality of the law will be challenged; however, if the action of the Governor is upheld by the courts, as seems probable, it remains to be seen whether punitive action in the form of fines against the union or its leaders will suffice to force the strikers back to work.

If they do return to work, those who are citizens will be required under the law to take a loyalty oath and those who are Philippine nationals, as many are, will be required to take an oath denying membership in the Communist Party.

If, however, the strikers still resist, it is hard to see what the Governor can do but call out his troops to load and unload the ships. But even this will avail little if the longshoremen of the Pacific West Coast, who are also under the control of Mr. Bridges, keep their threat of refusing to handle any cargoes consigned to or from Hawaii. All in all, it is a very nasty state of affairs that calls for a cool head and a strong nerve on the part of Governor Stainback.

DEER AT DAWN

The road was shadowy with morning mist,
The trees were hung with drops of amethyst

When soundless as a thistle on the breeze,
An antlered buck came bounding through the trees.

As sudden as a dappled beam of sun,
He paused to know if he should stand or run.

His coat was mottled golden, and his eyes were amber pools of luminous surprise.

I must have breathed, because his haunches flinched
And lifted him like mighty springs unclinched.

As effortlessly as a soaring bird
He went, and not a bough behind him stirred.

The road, when he had gone, was dim and gray
As though the sun had vanished from the day.

GERALD RAFTERY

The China Story

The 1054-page White Paper on China is the story of American officials who sought unavailingly to frustrate the slow and interrupted course of a revolution, the roots of which go back a hundred years. All of these officials are men of good faith. All of them were actuated by patriotic purpose. Yet the failure of mission after mission either to prevent civil war or to help Chiang Kai-shek lick the Communists has been attended by dissensions in our domestic politics which have been shameful and divisive. The reason is that bipartisanship in foreign policy has never extended to China. Governor Dewey, searching for an independent foreign policy, adopted Chiang's China, and he and the Republicans used Chiang as a stick with which to spank Harry Truman. One result was that the State Department got itself imprisoned in the interparty squabble; many of our diplomats found themselves branded and smeared as members of a Red cell that existed only in Republican imagination. Nor was this slur wholly partisan. In the propaganda aimed at discrediting the State Department the critics have been assisted by a swarming and influential lobby of mixed Chinese and American composition equipped with ample funds which belonged properly to Chinese reconstruction.

A panorama of the personalities in charge of our China policy is unfolded in this report, beginning with General Stilwell. Stilwell reported that Chiang Kai-shek had "become a hostage of the forces he manipulated," and he meant evil forces. Succeeding events—up to the time that Chiang's nominated successor, President Li Tsung-yen, actually pleaded with Ambassador J. Leighton Stuart to restrain Chiang from interference and blamed the Chiang regime for failure to make "judicious use of American aid"—vindicated the Stilwell judgment. Never can there have been such a story of monumental stupidity, military incompetence, and political venality and myopia as is threaded through the crowded pages of this White Paper. General Eisenhower once warned that you cannot cooperate with weakness. In the postwar story of China the United States sought to cooperate with moral turpitude (government corruption) and a moth-eaten administration. It was this decay that, after the collapse of negotiations for a Nationalist-Communist settlement, the United States tried to make a functioning and victorious regime, though none of the American representatives entertained the slightest notion that that regime had any popular support. The arms we supplied fell, or were sold, to the Communists, and not one battle was lost for lack of arms.

This is a depressing record of American futility. It should wind up the nonsensical assumption that, short of losing ourselves in China, we could have changed the course of events. It should equally put a quietus to the suicidal campaign to induce us to indulge in what the State Department calls the "incalculable risk" of stopping events which are now rushing to a climax. What American policy started out to do before it bankrupted itself in a wretched military intervention was to aid Chiang in solving the Communist problem by "political means," which was the stated object of Chiang's own policy. He and nobody else was responsible for this policy of the Popular Front. Not only General Marshall, but all the Americans before and after him, notably General Hurley, worked at it. The policy was doomed to failure because revolutionary forces were at large and because of the profound mistrust that both sides entertained for each other.

The first cause is scarcely mentioned in these memoranda, the second preoccupies most of the memorandists. It is revealed, contrary to general supposition, that long before the war with Japan was over, Chiang had left the job of winning it to the United States and turned to preparations for a reckoning with the Communists. The account of General Marshall's ceaseless toil at mediation is truly heartbreaking and will remind the student of China of a similar stint by Britain's General Gordon in the T'aip'ing Rebellion. The integrity of the position of General Marshall, as of General Gordon before him, was constantly betrayed. Marshall was Kiplingesque in his hope, and the fine austere quality of the man is the only jewel discernible in the dross and disillusion of this packed history.

As for the dross, this unhappy episode in our foreign relations—which has left us with a tarnished prestige in the eyes of the Chinese people—could have been underlined by details of the vast sums which Chinese leaders were banking abroad while they were appealing for and getting vast sums for China from the American taxpayers. General Wedemeyer seems to have had the data about these funds, but on grounds that they came to him in strict confidence, refused to yield the information to Chiang Kai-shek. Yet General Wedemeyer was in favor of bigger and better aid—that incalculable risk—as well as of an impracticable scheme for putting Manchuria under U. N. trusteeship. Here for the first time is the Wedemeyer report. It was for China's sake that the report was not released, for, of course, publication of the idea about Manchuria would have hurt China's pride. Wedemeyer's strictures on Chiang and the gang around him are as acid as any in the White Paper. No missioner indeed hides the unholy graft that he and the others encountered in trying to help Chiang. It went merrily along under ECA, and William R. Mathews, shrewdest of recent journalistic wanderers in Asia, reported on the very day of the issuance of this White Paper that he had found ECA goods for China on sale in Siam.

The sorry tale is one of sweat and tears and treasure expended in this vainest of vain projects of "saving" China. Let bygones be bygones (even the avowedly "unfortunate" failure to consult China over the Yalta deal on Manchuria) and let us, for a change, concentrate on a pro-American policy in respect of Far Eastern turmoil. Events are moving fast; our Americans are in jeopardy from the natural and intervention-created xenophobes in China, and we must now think of looking after our Americans, instead of "our" Chinese.

Letters To The Editor

Communications must be addressed to the editor and must carry the complete name and street address of the writer, though pen names will be permitted at the editor's discretion. Letters of less than 200 words will be given preference, and all letters are subject to condensation. No communication can be returned.

Divorce Articles

I am sorry to see such front-page prominence given to the articles by Bill Brinkley; in fact the articles appear to me to be of such nature as would not justify your printing them at all.

There is nothing humorous about a broken-up marriage. Marriage is a sacrament, and whatever difficulties may arise should lend themselves to a happy solution if both sides are aware of their own personal responsibilities and of the vows they made most seriously at the time of marriage.

If Bill Brinkley showed as much interest in portraying happy marriages, good homes, decent living, he would bring something to the readers of your paper, and your paper in turn would acquire a higher standard. G. H. McDERMOTT.

With utmost disgust I noticed in your paper the article series, "Divorce in the District" by Bill Brinkley. Although my time is too valuable to waste it reading the minute details of the Eyes' exploits in catching people when they commit adultery, the August 3 article was sufficiently repugnant to make me tell you that is is beyond my comprehension how a newspaper of such high moral standard and well deserved reputation could degrade itself by printing things below the level of trash literature.

Public Works

President Truman's decision to undertake a program of public works to take up the slack in employment and thereby prevent more unemployment should be a corrective development.

The effects of mass unemployment politically might be more serious than the economic effects. But, there is equal danger from Government-sponsored public works planned to make employment for everyone. The danger is that Government-sponsored public works may offer employment more attractive than productive employment offered by industry and result in a shortage of production which would in turn lower the value of all money and lead to demands for more and more money and higher and higher wages. For this reason all such public works jobs should be paid at lower rates than those prevailing in private industry and employment should be handled through local employment offices, responsible to a congressional committee that would give preference to the needs of private industry and to the requirements of farmers for seasonable and regular help.

Bootblacks

In your news articles emanating from Congress (about John Maragon) it might be well to refrain from further use of the phrase, "former bootblack," since you seem to imply the following ot that occupation is either ignoble, or worse.

We have many bootblacks in this city who are as good citizens as those in the "professions." I have in mind the owner of a shoe repair and shoeshine shop who in the past has given thousands of pairs of shoes to poor people.

Then to shine a pair of shoes properly requires ability. I dare say you would not put your feeble efforts at shining shoes in competition with those of a real bootblack.

Segregated Swimming

In your August 4 issue I noticed an article that caused me considerable amazement. The article states that Chairman Harry S. Wender of the District Recreation Board has cast the "blame" on the Interior Department "for lack of progress in settling the swimming pool question." He cites the numerous protests and petitions his board has received requesting that Anacostia pool be reopened (on a segregated basis). He further states that children are risking their lives in nearby hazardous waters. (Not a word about the Negro children who risk their lives for a chance to swim in the Potomac, the Eastern Branch, and Kingman Lake.)

Chairman Wender is adopting the old pattern of continuing segregation in Washington. Whenever an "area" previously segregated is open to all there will always be a group that screams "there will be riots and bloodshed!" Thus, if an incident occurs they yell, not for protection by the law enforcement officers, but for a return to the status quo. They cite their liberality for equality, but insist upon "gradualism" which means nothing but continued segregation.

It is indeed heartening to see that the Interior Department has taken the stand that it has in the face of all of the criticism that has been heaped upon it.

Rainmaking

To those who may imagine that experimentation in rainmaking is an entirely modern idea, I believe the following may be of some interest.

"The rainmakers at Fort Myer, on the Potomac, have gotten themselves into trouble. They have been using explosives for experiments. The first explosion shook every building in the capital and woke up all children and sick people to whom it caused no little alarm and dangerous disturbance. This explosion was followed by others at intervals all through the night.

"A slight rain fell in the night and there was a misty moisture in the atmosphere yesterday morning, but Major Dunwoodie, who is in charge of the Weather Bureau, emphatically denies that either was the result of the rainmaking bombardment. On the contrary, he condemns the experiments as being merely efforts to sustain the visionary, unscientific maunderings, as he calls them, of Professor Dyrenfurth, the chief rainmaker, and asserts that he and all those associated with him ought to be prosecuted as public nuisances, notwithstanding the fact that they are acting under authority of an appropriation by Congress." Pius XI On Education

Ruth Clark Bliss, in her July 28 letter, distorts some passages and omits others contained in an encyclical of Pope Pius XI, which she says shows that Catholics claim "complete control over American education."

She "quotes:" "As to the scope of the educative mission (of the church), it extends over all peoples without any limitations."

Of this passage, my translation says: "The extent of the church's mission is such as to embrace every nation, without exception."

The full meaning is clarified in the paragraphs which immediately follow explaining that the church considers that it has a right to carry its message to all men. This assertion is merely an affirmation that freedom "to teach all nations" should, by right, exist.

In the same encyclical, we read that the Pope believes that the state should honor the rights of Catholics, and members of other denominations as well, in granting support for the education of children in the religious schools their parents prefer.

"That this can be done to the full satisfaction of families, and to the advantage of public peace and tranquillity, is clear from the actual experience of some countries comprising different religious denominations," the Pope says. The Pope here is referring to such countries as democratic Canada, Holland and England, where financial aid is given to youths in denominational schools.

If he urges the state to take care of the education of Protestant children in Protestant schools, as he implicitly does, how can the encyclical be twisted to mean that the Catholic church claims complete control over American education?

The Catholics want nothing that is not theirs. They ask only that a small part of the money they pay in taxes for education be granted to their children in the kind of schools their consciences demand.

Transit Radio

This is to protest emphatically against the radio in the cars and buses of the Capital Transit Co.

If you listen to the radio when at home that is your God-given right. But when starting for work in the morning, and you are trying to plan your day or to solve a family problem, you are harassed by a song of Josephine Baker, or a lullaby, or you are reminded that a crab dinner is awaiting you when you have hardly finished breakfast. It is enough indeed to turn any peaceful citizen into a frenzied, belligerent individual.

Dogs In Summer

Many owners of pet dogs seem to forget that in the summer they require special care to keep them well and healthy. In very hot weather the best place for a dog is in the basement or a shady spot in a backyard. For dogs as well as humans fresh drinking water is important.

In summer when the sun is hot dogs suffer from the hot pavements because their feet are not protected with shoes as ours are.

In summer if a dog is kept in a cool place and has plenty of fresh water he should cause no trouble in the city.

Matter Of Fact

The Other Prop Is Cracking

THERE WERE TWO vital props of the successful foreign policy of the earlier Truman era. The first was the close collaboration between the leaders of the Administration and the leaders of both parties in Congress. The second was the intimate partnership between the State and Defense Departments. The first prop was kicked away immediately after the election. The second prop is now showing signs of cracking. Anything more serious could hardly be imagined.

Thus far, the only real danger signal is a kind of muttering, growling tension between the two departments, arising largely from the impulsive activities of Secretary of Defense Louis Johnson. For reasons which are extremely hard to understand, Johnson from the first showed no wish for the kind of close relationship with the State Department that existed in the time of James V. Forrestal, Robert A. Lovett and George C. Marshall.

It was not that Johnson exactly declared open war upon Secretary of State Dean G. Acheson. It was rather that State-Defense relations began to be disturbed by all sorts of petty, familiar, bureaucratic aggressions—limitations placed by the Defense Secretary on cooperation at lower levels; incursions by Johnson, in his role as Democratic money-raiser, into the field of State Department appointments; disputes over small prerogatives; Defense Department criticisms of State Department practice.

As is now rather widely known, this first phase of guerilla warfare has now emerged into a second phase of differences on policy. Of these, there have been two. With a sound instinct for an adversary's weakest point, Johnson fired the first shot by insisting that the United States ought to have a Far Eastern policy of some sort.

THE STATE DEPARTMENT, although desiring nothing less than clear policy in Asia, lacked adequate grounds for opposing Johnson's sensible demand. An important effort to shape Far Eastern policy thus began, and is still in progress. In this field as yet, contrary to common report, there has been only one open dispute. This arose from Johnson's opposition to publication of the China White Paper, on which he was unfortunately overruled. It remains to be seen what will occur when Johnson and Acheson must consider the new Far Eastern policy papers in the Security Council, as they will shortly have to do.

Meanwhile, another dispute has broken out over Yugoslavia. The issue is whether to permit the Tito regime to purchase a small steel blooming mill in this country. Some months ago, the Security Council and the President approved a limited policy of aid to Tito, as an important crumb in the Kremlin's bed. But Johnson has now adopted a view of Tito differing from the Security Council's.

Secretary of Commerce Sawyer, ever anxious to obstruct American foreign policy, took the question of the blooming mill to the Defense Department. Johnson then ruled that the Tito regime was hardly different from a Soviet satellite. And on this ground, Sawyer refused an export permit for the blooming mill. Nothing could be more ludicrously silly, or more frivolously dangerous. The enmity between Tito and the Kremlin is happily reaching new levels of virulence. If the one crack in the Soviet monolith is to be turned to advantage, the situation cannot be upset by this sort of ham-handed intervention.

There is something more important here, however, than the immediate points of difference between State and Defense. The fundamental question is not whether Tito will get his blooming mill, but whether the remaining American initiative in world affairs will be canceled by internal squabbles. In the last analysis, this is up to the President.

On the specific issues, a wise forecast is that President Truman will continue to support the State Department, as he did when he personally ordered the China White Paper to be published. Louis Johnson's all-too-visible presidential ambitions have not exactly endeared him to the White House, however many thousands of dollars he may have collected in the last campaign. And there is the closest possible personal relationship between Truman and Secretary of State Acheson, originating in the time when Acheson was Truman's only liaison with the distinctly independent State Department of James F. Byrnes. When the blooming-mill row is taken up to Truman, he is expected to find in Acheson's favor a second time.

IT IS NOT ENOUGH, however, for the President to arbitrate existing disputes between his policy-makers. In the present atmosphere within the Administration and between the Administration and Congress, bold, urgently needed steps are already being shirked simply because they may lead to disputes.

In the case of Yugoslavia, for instance, Tito may shortly require much more than blooming mills. The British crisis rolls onward unchecked. The disaster in China begins to threaten a catastrophe in Asia. Yet because of the loss of Administration unity and the abandonment of bipartisanship, paralysis increasingly grips our policy on all these vital matters. This is the danger the President must guard against.

A Communication

Foes Of Home Rule Seen On Defensive

NOW THAT THE Judiciary Subcommittee of the House District Committee has completed hearings on home rule bills for the District of Columbia, it is an appropriate time to sum up the issues involved.

When the Eightieth Congress was organized and the House District Subcommittee on Home Rule and Reorganization was established, at first the main emphasis of this subcommittee was directed toward reorganization of the government of the District, and home rule was a secondary consideration. However, after studying the facts about the situation in the District, it quickly became clear to the members of the subcommittee that the main issue involved was home rule. Reorganization of the government of Washington was important, but any overhauling of its incredibly complicated administrative structure, without delegating responsibility to the residents of the District, could be, at best, only a temporary expedient.

The astounding proliferation of District agencies of government was a direct result of lack of central executive and legislative control responsible to local voters.

WHEN THE Auchincloss Subcommittee explored the principal factors involved in the central issue of government for the District—home rule—it came to conclusive determinations on several points. The Kefauver Subcommittee confirmed these determinations:

Constitutionality: There is no sound constitutional argument against the authority of Congress to delegate municipal legislative and executive powers to a locally elected government. There is a sound constitutional basis for believing that far more extensive powers could be delegated such as is done for territorial legislatures. A legislative veto by Congress of proposed District legislation, as in the Kefauver and an earlier Auchincloss bill, has nothing to do with the constitutional right of Congress to delegate such authority, since this veto right is only a means of providing a congressional review of District legislation and utilizing a device to save time.

Extent of Suffrage: There is no sound reason why voting rights in the District should not be granted to those resident as well as those domiciled in the District, without limiting the rights of the former to vote in State elections for State and national officers. On the contrary, it is ethically a good thing to do as well as being in the interest of good local government; because, until the Constitution is amended, Congress cannot give to domiciles of the District the right to vote for national officers, and those who now have this right should not be deprived of it unnecessarily. It hurts no State, since no one votes twice for the same officers. Most States agree that they would respect the wishes of Congress in this regard. The so-called dual-voting provision of the Auchincloss and Kefauver bills is a logical answer to a knotty problem.

Extent of Home Rule: In the recent hearings, there was criticism of the Auchincloss and Kefauver bills on the grounds that they did not in fact provide home rule. As that term is customarily applied to local government, these bills provide as much home rule as is usually granted to cities by State legislatures. Criticism that home rule is impossible without national representation is a complete misinterpretation of the usual use of the term. To prove this, all that is necessary is to ask the mayor of any American city if representation in the State Legislature gives that city home rule. Most such mayors would consider themselves fortunate indeed to have legislative initiative vested in the city council, as is provided in the Auchincloss and Kefauver bills, subject only to legislative veto.

Central Executive Responsibility: The parade of familiar faces before the Judiciary Subcommittee pleading the special circumstances of their particular agencies proves the tenacity with which governmental institutions protect their interests. These special claims were considered by the Auchincloss Subcommittee on their merits, and they were considered again by the Kefauver Subcommittee. The fact that adjustments were not made in these bills to conform to the wishes of these agencies means that these subcommittees would not compromise with an essential principle of good government; to wit, if you are going to have central responsibility, you must have central authority. The pleas of these agencies for continuation of independent boards and commissions, however meritorious each may be in itself, flies in the face of this principle. If the voters are to be given the right to govern their local affairs, they should be able to hold someone responsible, and the best way to accomplish this is to make, as far as possible, one man responsible for the executive direction of the city. As provided in the Auchincloss and Kefauver bills, this one man would be a professional city manager appointed by an elected city council and removable at any time. This plan of local government, the council-manager plan, is probably the best yet devised and it has been thoroughly tested in nearly 50 years of practice.

FOR THOSE privileged to be associated with the development and advancement of home rule legislation for the District, the changes in the tactics of the opposition have provided an interesting subject of observation. In the first Auchincloss hearings, opposition emphasis was on doubtful constitutionality of home rule for the District. This has been demolished by patient research so that in the most recent hearings the distinguished counsel for the Board of Trade did not raise this issue—an interesting omission in his testimony. From the beginning of the Auchincloss inquiry, the race question was quietly advanced in off-the-record statements, with dire prophecies of minority control. Again, careful investigation disposed of this straw man. Some advanced the paramount and overriding Federal interest in Washington as arguments against home rule, but careful analysis showed that it was possible and feasible to separate Federal from District interests without injury to either, and this offensive degenerated into a rearguard action. Now, this opposition has retreated to its last citadel: "national representation first" which, of all the arguments advanced, makes the least sense.

Whatever method the opposition has used in opposing home rule, the real reason for this opposition has not and probably will not appear, because of what it represents. It represents fear on the part of many civic leaders of the effects of extension of the franchise to those who do not have it. It is the fear on the part of these leaders that their present positions and influence would be impaired thereby.

The history of the American Republic and other democratic nations are sagas of the struggles to broaden the suffrage against the opposition of vested interests who feared greater democratic participation. In essence, precisely the same struggle is involved in the District; and it is this struggle which has placed the opposition on the defense.

Fundamentally, the opposition knows that there is simple justice in the cause of home rule for the District. Their retention of the final argument of "national representation first" reveals the poverty of arguments left to the opposition. It is a plea for delay, and it is clearly recognizable as such.

Home Rule Gets More Support

tainly I am for home rule for the District."

Neil J. Lineham (D., Ill.):

"I haven't anything to say because I haven't gone into it."

In Favor

James V. Buckley (D., Ill.):

"I'd go on record as saying I favor it. I believe that according to our Constitution the people in all 48 states have home rule and Washington people here should have the same privilege."

Sidney R. Yates (D., Ill.):

"I'm strongly in favor of home rule for the District. I can't see any reason why the people who live here and want to carry on their municipal affairs shouldn't do so as they do in any other community."

Richard W. Hoffman (R., Ill.), a former Board of Education president:

"I think the elected school board proposition (in the Kefauver bill) is a good thing. It gives the people the opportunity to elect those they feel are qualified to run their own schools. Elimentary and secondary schools should be set up to fit the needs of the community. I wouldn't want to comment on the rest of the bill until I've read it though I don't think people should be disenfranchised."

Chester A. Chesney (D., Ill.):

"I haven't analyzed the bill, but I'm of the opinion the District of Columbia should have some kind of home rule. Congress wastes too much time on ordinary city affairs the council handles back in Chicago."

Promises Study

Edgar A. Jonas (R., Ill.):

"I don't know enough about that bill to express a definite opinion. But I will study it and if it appears to be fair and just legislation whereby the people are given the franchise where heretofore they were deprived of it, I would be inclined to support it."

Harold H. Velde (R., Ill.):

"The bill seems to be a step toward home rule with sufficient supervision by Congress to prevent corruption of the home-rule government. Home rule generally is something to be desired."

Peter F. Mack, jr. (D., Ill.):

"I don't have any opinion to express at this point on the legislation as I have made it a practice not to participate in polls conducted on proposed legislation."

Gerald R. Ford, jr. (R., Mich.):

"I don't want to be ironbound to say I'll vote for it, but there's considerable merit to the idea. If the details on the bill coincide with my general ideas on home rule, I'll vote for it. My present inclination is to vote for it."

George D. O'Brien (D., Mich.), a member of previous Congresses but not of the Eightieth:

"What I'd like to see is a constitutional amendment to permit District representation in the House and a vote for President. I do have serious doubts about the constitutionality of the Kefauver bill and I also have doubts as to having a separate municipal government here."

Louis C. Rabaut (D., Mich.), a member of former Congresses but not of the Eightieth:

"I think I'd be favorable to it."

Three House members who were also in the Eightieth Congress but did not vote on the Auchincloss bill also were checked. They had these remarks to make:

William L. Dawson (D., Ill.):

"I think home rule is fundamental. The people of any community ought to have a say about those who hold the reins of government in the city where they live."

Martin Korski (D., Ill.):

"I'm for District home rule—very strongly for it. I've always been for complete enfranchisement of the people here—just like the people back in Illinois."

Arends Undecided

Leslie C. Arends (R., Ill.), minority whip of the House:

"I'm undecided. I'd want to hear all the discussion and debate on the issue on the House floor before making up my mind."

One House member among the Illinois-Michigan group split his two votes on the Auchincloss bill last year—one for and one against. He was Rolla C. McMillan (R., Ill.). Asked about this year's legislation, he said:

"I haven't studied the bill sufficiently to express an opinion as to how I might vote on it this year."

Those members who voted for or against home rule when the Auchincloss bill was up last year divide as follows, on the basis of their 1948 votes:

DAR to Lead Fight Against World Union

By the United Press

Formation of a new "patriots executive committee" to fight world government proposals was announced here yesterday.

Mrs. Lola Lee Bruington, executive secretary of the national defense committee of the Daughters of the American Revolution, was elected head of the new group.

She said the DAR will "spearhead" the organization in a campaign to "combat the ideals of those who would sell our American sovereignty."

The DAR has been joined by veterans groups, the The American coalition, representing 85 patriotic organizations, and others," Mrs. Bruington said. She did not list other members of the committee.

The DAR leader said in a statement that the campaign will be aimed particularly at proposals put forward by the United World Federalists and the Atlantic Union Committee.

Both plans recently were embodied in resolutions introduced in Congress with strong bipartisan backing.

The resolutions were defended by Sen. Claude Pepper (D., Fla.), one of the sponsors of the Senate proposal. He issued a statement saying that 22 state legislatures have passed world federation resolutions "of one type or another."

Pepper said this indicates a rapidly-expanding popular demand that "we reaffirm our faith in the United Nations and move forward to build that organization into a structure capable of preserving the peace."

The world federalists, headed by Cord Meyer, jr., favor changes in the U. N. Charter to give the world organization the powers of a limited federal government in preventing war and enforcing disarmament.

The Atlantic Union committee, headed by former Supreme Court Justice Owen J. Roberts, proposes a federation of the North American and western European democracies which sponsored the Atlantic Security Pact.

Mrs. Bruington said both plans would mean reducing United States armed forces to the status of "a mere internal police force."

"Since these idealists would have us weaken our position, both in the matter of arms and national security," she said, "we cannot but believe that their attempt is communist-inspired, although they may not be aware of the fact."

Burma Factions Clash

Detection of Heart Ailments Now Easier

This differentiation had its slow start in percussion, whose discoverer (as might be guessed) was a musician with a musician's sense of sound. As an innkeeper's son, Auenbrugger likely had thumped on a keg to judge its fluid content—adn got his inspiration for chest thumping.

It took 50 years for the medical profession to accept his technique. It has taken even longer to die since its replacement by more accurate diagnostic tests.

Chest thumping, belittled as it is today by heart specialists, was a significant milestone in the history of heart studies. It led naturally to auscultation, in which the doctor listens to heart sounds with his ear to the patient's chest. And this direct auscultation led, through the protests of a plump and sex-fearful maiden, to the stethoscope, still an invaluable tool in diagnosis.

Musician-physician Auenbrugger discovered that by thumping a patient's chest he could determine the heart borders. Even eighteenth century doctors knew that diseased hearts became enlarged hearts. He noted, too, that he could determine fluid accumulations in the heart and lung sacs.

More Discerning Today

Today's tools and techniques permit doctors to be more discerning. They seek out 21 different fundamental causes of organic heart disease from their effects. These 21 causes are the heart ills accompanied by actual changes in the heart muscle (myocardium), the inner lining and valves of the heart (endocardium), and the outer lining of the heart (pericardium).

Physicians can usually do little for their patients unless they know exactly what ails those patients. And only in the present generation have physicians learned precisely what things can and do go wrong with the heart.

Such advance in diagnosis means life in many cases today of children born with congenital heart defects; to executives stricken in their prime by heart seizure, and to the oldsters, facing invalidism by gradual hardening of the coronary arteries or congested heart failure.

The stethoscope was France's contribution to heart diagnosis. It was first fashioned there in 1819 by Dr. Rene Theophile Hyacinthe Laennec. The sex of his patient and her plumpness made ordinary ear-sounding difficult.

She refused to let even a physician put his bare ear to her equally bare breast. Laennec solved the problem by fashioning the first stethoscope out of a wooden cylinder and tubing to his ear.

Principle Still in Use

The principle of that rude stethoscope has not been altered. The common stethoscope today is simply a small bell with a pin hole and two tubes to conduct the sound to the physician's ear. A more recent development is the stethoscope with which heart sounds are picked up on a beat diaphragm and amplified.

Present day heart diagnosis, however, got its biggest boosts through a German physicist, Wilhelm Konrad Roentgen, discoverer of X-rays, and a Dutch physiologist, Willem Einthoven, who made the first electrocardiograph.

From Roentgen's discovery in 1895 comes today's standard X-ray test of measuring the shadowings of the heart and its four main chambers, the nomogra msystem.

The nomogram system is a carefully worked out scale of the healthy heart for comparison with the patient's X-ray, and is scaled to the age, sex, weight and height of the individual. Deviations from the normal indicate impairments and their degree.

8 Years After X-Ray

The electrocardiograph came eight years after X-rays when Einthoven described his findings in 1903 with a string galvanometer he adapted to record action currents produced by the heart. The basic principle is behind today's electrocardiograph machines.

Such instruments today are required of equipment for most practitioners even though, as one of Washington's leading cardiologists has estimated, only about 10 per cent know how to interpret fully the electrocardiograms they produce.

To those who can read them, however, such heart recordings contribute about 15 per cent to the over-all diagnosis. Physical examinations contribute another 25 per cent, X-ray or fluoroscopic examinations rate 5 per cent, and laboratory tests are given the same rating of 5 per cent.

The remaining 50 per cent to complete each heart study must be gleaned from the patient and the history of his complaints. Such things as shortness of breath, transitory swellings in the body, chest pain with exertion and other symptoms known only to the patient may round out the picture of organic heart disease.

Some of today's heart testing procedures are too expensive or require too much skill for even the majority of heart specialists. They are more justified for research than routine clinical procedures.

These include angiocardiography, which requires the facilities of the most modern of hospitals, and heart catheterization, a delicate technique in which the experienced surgeon threads a tube through a vein in the arm and into the heart chambers to obtain a blood sample.

With angiocardiography, specialists can take X-ray pictures at split-second intervals of the course of radio-opaque dyes through the heart valves and heart chambers, through the circulatory system and actually see the defects. By analysis of blood samples taken in heart catheterization, physicians can tell if infections are present or if leakages exist between the heart's two-pump system.

The ballistocardiograph, developed at the University of Pennsylvania, is an apparatus for more accurate studies of the heart and blood flow. The patient under study lies on a cot which is suspended on wires to prevent influence of external forces.

The electrokymograph is the instrument whose newness and adaptability may make it the mass survey machine of the future. A refinement of both the fluoroscope and the electrocardiograph, it is designed to detect irregularities of expansion and contraction of specific areas of the heart.

Techniques of its use must be standardized, but cardiologists familiar with its workings are confident that its use in mass survey studies of the heart (similar to mass chest X-ray studies) will reveal diseased heart conditions sooner than ever before.

The instrument throws an X-ray beam through the patient's chest at such an angle that a shadow of the heart is projected on a fluorescent screen. At right angles to the X-ray beam is a highly sensitive photo-cell equipped with a narrow slit which scans the shadow of an edge of the heart as it contracts and expands.

Thus, movement patterns of specific areas of healthy hearts may be compared to movement patterns of disordered or diseased hearts. In time, the healthy heart's movements may be plotted well enough so that irregularities can be spotted early and accurately.

The electrokymograph was perfected jointly by Philadelphia's Temple University of Medicine, the National Institutes of Health, in Bethesda, Md., and the heart demonstration section of United States Public Health Service. It is being used clinically at the United States Marine Hospital, in Baltimore, and at such medical centers as the Universities of Pennsylvania, California, Colorado and Minnesota.

Chest thumping to electrokymograph represents a span of nearly 200 years. The great surge to present day application of heart testing, however, has come within the past decade as surgeons dared to go to work on the heart, and drugs were perfected to aid the victim of heart disease.

Czechs Award Soviets Most Film Prizes

Marienbad, Czechoslovakia, Aug. 7 (AP).—An all-Czech jury today awarded Russia most major prizes as the Fourth International Film Festival wound up at this West Bohemian spa.

The Soviet "Battle of Stalingrad" got the grand prize for the best film. Another Russian picture, "Meeting in the Elbe," received the peace award.

Both pictures are sharply critical of American and British "aggressive imperialist policies."

Nats Score Only Two Runs But Gain Split; Hittle Wins 1 to 0

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

The Nats scored only two runs in their day-long battle with the White Sox yesterday, but they proportioned them so skillfully they got an even break out of their efforts.

The tally they pattycaked across the plate in the first game was sufficient only to extend their losing streak to seven straight by a 4-1 count.

In the nightcap, however, they came up with an unearned tally which earned for rookie Lloyd Hittle a nifty 1-0 victory, the success being his third of the year and his first in a starting role.

Doing what hasn't been coming naturally to Nats' pitchers, the $65,000 lefthander pitched the entire nine innings. His achievement doesn't end there, not by any means.

He also rapped out a fifth inning single off lefthander Billy Pierce and the hit later turned out to be the only run the Nats needed to salvage the series final from the Hose.

Except for the fourth inning, Hittle didn't have too much trouble. He yielded eight hits, one more than the Nats made off Pierce, but the red-headed southpaw from Oakland, Calif., had it in the clutch.

He was chin-deep in trouble in the fourth, but came out of it gallantly. Luke Appling, who got five hits during the day, greeted Hittle in the fourth with a double and Cass Michaels followed with a single to push the durable shortstop to third.

Falling back on his fast ball, Hittle disposed of Charlie Kress, Steve Souchock and George Metkovich without either of the trio hitting the ball out of the infield.

In the next inning he struck the single that led to his victory. Eddie Yost singled him to third, and when Souchock's throw to second got by Michaels, Hittle scampered on in with the only run that the 6719 customers got for their dough in the second game.

Mickey Harris tried and failed again in the opener. The Sox tagged him for three of their four runs in his six-inning stint, and this was enough for Randy Gumpert to

Valo, Guerra Pace Macks With Hitting

Philadelphia, Aug. 7 (AP).—The Philadelphia Athletics jolted the Cleveland Indians' pennant hopes today by taking a doubleheader, 5 to 4 and 4 to 2. Outfielder Elmer Valo and Catcher Mike Guerra supplied the big batting punch.

A three-run homer by Valu plus neat relief pitching by Charley Harris gave the Athletics the first game.

Haris was called into action after Mickey Vernon doubled off starter Lou Brissie to open the eighth inning. Harris protected a one-run margin by putting down the last five hitters in order.

Valo put the A's ahead with his three-run homer in the third inning. Lou Boudreau and Allie Clark each homered as Cleveland unsuccessfully fought back. Larry Doby was on base when Boudreau connected in the sixth.

In the nightcap Philadelphia had to rally with three runs in the sixth to defeat the Indians.

Cleveland scored both its runs off Joe Coleman in the first inning. Dale Mitchell singled and made the rounds on Sam Chapman's three-base error. Doby singled, Vernon doubled, Joe Gordon drew an intentional pass and Doby scored on Thurman Tucker's infield hit.

Majeski, Hit by Wynn Taken to Hospital

Philadelphia, Aug. 7 (U.P.).—Third Baseman Hank Majeski of the Philadelphia Athletics was hit in the head by a pitched ball today while batting against Early Wynn of the Cleveland Indians.

Majeski was struck behind the left ear by the first pitch thrown by Wynn in the fourth inning and was knocked to the ground. Although conscious, he was carried off the field on a stretcher and taken to Graduate Hospital.

Nightcap Called in 10th, 2-2

New York, Aug. 7 (AP).—The St. Louis Browns held the New York Yankees to a 2-to-2 ten-inning tie in the second half of a doubleheader today after the American Leage pace setters crushed the Browns, 20 to 2, with a 22-hit barrage in the opener.

The Yanks, however, stretched their margin to five and a half games over the runner-up Cleveland Indians, who dropped a double-header to Philadelphia.

Al Papai held the Yanks to two hits in the nightcap. Papai granted a run in the second on a walk, wild throw, passed ball and fly ball.

Papai gave up the deadlocking run in the sixth on another pass, Bobby Brown's single and Bill Johnson's fly.

Bob Porterfield, making his first start since his recall from Newark, allowed both St. Louis runs in the first inning when Jack Graham singled with runners on second and third.

The Yanks took control of things early in the opener, pounding nine runs across the plate in the third on as many hits. The 22 hits included Yogi Berra's sixteenth homer in the first inning. Hank Sievers of the Browns also homered in the first game.

Little Phil Rizzuto was the Yank batting star, gettin four hits in seven trips to the plate. Rightfielder Hank Bauer had three for three and Joe DiMaggio came in with three hits in four times up.

The Browns used five pitchers with starter Ned Garver being credited with his twelfth loss against seven victories. Tommy Byrne of the Yanks won his ninth victory against six setbacks.

Berra Breaks Thumbs, Out Three Weeks

New York, Aug. 7 (U.P.).—Catcher Larry (Yogi) Berra of the New York Yankees suffered a fractured left thumb today when he was hit by a pitched ball and team physician Dr. Sidney Gaymor said the stocky receiver will be out of action for three weeks.

Tommy Henrich and Gus Niarhos of the Yankees also were hit by pitched balls thrown by Karl Drews. Later, Yankee Pitcher Tommy Byrne dusted off Drews.

Dodgers Win Two, Tie For Lead

Cincinnati, Aug. 7 (AP).—The Brooklyn Dodgers whipped the Cincinnati Reds with home runs today to sweep a double-header, 7 to 0 and 2 to 1, and move into a tie with St. Louis for first place in the National League.

Home runs by Bruce Edwards and Jackie Robinson were the payoff blows for the Dodgers in the opener.

Edwards got his homer in the sixth with the bases loaded and Robinson rapped his circuit blow in the first with one on.

Lefty Joe Hatten blanked the Reds with seven hits in the first game and he also went back to the mound for the last 1 2/3 innings of the nightcap when starter Rex Barney ran into trouble.

Five of Cincinnati's seven hits in the second game were doubles but the Reds were ineffective with men in scoring position.

Robinson's home run put the first game out of Cincinnati's reach in the opening inning. His blast came after Furillo had singled with two out.

In the sixth Robinson doubled and scored on Gil Hodges' single. Luis Olmo walked and he and Hodges then executed a double steal. Tom Brown was walked intentionally to fill the bases and Edwards then unloaded with his home run.

The second game started off like a repetition of the opener. The Dodgers got two runs before a man

Cards Win 9-2; Giant Errors Hurt

St. Louis, Aug. 7 (AP).—Four New York errors plus Red Munger's seven-hit pitching gave the St. Louis Cardinals a 9-to-2 victory over the Giants today before 29,009 fans, including Vice President Alben W. Barkley.

Four runs in the sixth inning constituted the big punch for the Redbirds. They also tallied three times in the fourth frame—two of them on Munger's single. A bad throw by Bill Rigney allowed the other score in the fourth.

The cards took a first-inning lead when Red Schoendienst was safe on Johnny Mize's fumble. Schoendienst scored on Stan Musial's double.

The Giants tied the score on Willard Marshall's single, a walk to Sid Gordon and a single by Ray Mueller—all in the second inning. Gordon homered in the ninth with the bases empty for the other Giant run.

After their three runs in the fourth St. Louis added another unearned run in the fifth.

Bogley Wins National Net Title Again

Kalamazoo, Mich., Aug. 7.—Gil Bogley, 18-year-old Chevy Chase, Md., youngster, won today for the second time the highest honors for his age in the sport of tennis.

Culminating a week-long campaign, Gil defeated Hamilton Richardson of Baton Rouge, La., in straight sets in the finals of the National Junior and Boys' Tennis Championships, 6—2, 7—5, 6—3.

The boys division title was won by Jack Frost of Monterey, Calif., who turned back Al Kuhn of Evanston, Ill., in three sets, 6—3, 1—6, 6—3.

Bogley, a sophomore at Princeton, successfully defended the title he won in 1948 by outstroking and outmaneuvering young Richardson.

The latter, last year's boys' titleholder who is playing his first season in junior ranks, lacked the power to consistently match shots with Gil, and late in the final set, his lack of experience told the story.

Bogley played through the entire tournament without losing a set. Strong evidence of his superiority over the field. In addition, he did not lose a set in winning last week's western championships.

Gil's battle with Richardson was marked by high caliber tennis. Both boys played soundly, and at

Houtteman Halts Bosox Streak, 6-4

Boston, Aug. 7 (AP).—Although he gave up a dozen hits, righthander Art Houtteman today celebrated his twenty-second birthday by pitching the Detroit Tigers to a 6-4 decision over the Boston Red Sox.

A paid throng of 30,573 also saw the Detroit native bat in two runs in winning his ninth victory. The loss, third for Lefthander Maurice McDermott, ended a Sox winning streak of seven games.

Houtteman, who has lost six, was rough when he had to be and was aided by some good fielding.

Of the dozen hits he yielded two were home runs, by Ted Williams and Vern Stephens who remained tied for the American League in that department with 27 each.

Dom DiMaggio bunted safely in the first inning, extending his hitting streak through 34 consecutive games.

Houtemann banged two hits in four times at bat. His first was a double to left center in the second which scored two of Detroit's runs.

Johnny Groth's ninth homer of the season with a mate on gave the Tigers two more in the third and Houtteman scored the sixth in the ninth on George Kell's double.

A Williams double brought in DiMaggio, in the first for Boston and Ted's homer in the seventh was the second Sox run. Their other two were on Stephens' homer in the ninth.

Mrs. Lewis Wins Canadian Net Title

Halifax, N. S., Aug. 7 (AP).—Mrs. Baba Lewis of Jamaica Plains, Mass., won the women's singles title of the Canadian Lawn Tennis Championship today.

She defeated defending champion Patricia Macken of Montreal, 6—0, 6—2. Mrs. Lewis won the title in 1946.

It's a Boy

Flagpole Rooter Daddy

Cleveland, Aug. 7 (AP).—The wife of Cleveland's famous flag pole sitter, Charley Lupica, gave birth today to a 7-pound 1-ounce boy. And Charley cried from his 40-foot perch:

"The hell with the Indians. I got a baby!"

"I feel fine," he yelled. "I feel better than I've ever felt. I feel I can sit up here until that Cleveland baseball club gets on top again. This gives me practically a new start."

He has been on his platform 68 days today and means to stay there until the Cleveland Indians reach first place

Lightning Kills Player

Urbana, Ohio, Aug. 7 (U.P.).—One player was killed and nine others hurt today when a bolt of lightning flashed across a baseball diamond.

The bolt struck during a light rain in the first inning of the Troy-Urban game of the Miami Valley League at Tritts Corners near here.

First Baseman Harold Jensen, 22, of Urbana's team was killed.

Three other ball players were treated at Champaign County Hospital here. They were reported in good condition. They were Second Baseman Don Snyder, 23; Left Fielder Tod Eggleston, 28, and Cather Robert Delaney, 20.

Four other members of the squad and two umpires were knocked down, but recovered after treatment on the ball diamond.

Members of the Troy team escaped injury.

The accident bore a striking similarity to one which occurred at the beginning of a ball game at Baker, Fla., a week ago.

Two players were killed, a third critically burned, and 50 additional players and spectators slightly burned or shocked.

Johnson Finals Start Aug. 10th

The world series of junior baseball in Washington gets underway Wednesday when the finalists in two of the four divisions of the Walter Johnson leagues meet in the first game of a best two of three series.

Rosedale's L. P. Steuart team in the A-F, 12 years and under division, meets the Takoma Central Fuel team at 11 a. m. on the East Ellipse, in the first game of the series.

Two hours later, Rosedale and Takoma meet again. This time Rosedale will be represented by the Otto and Beattie All-Stars, and Takoma will send Pat Troiano's team onto the field in an under-14 contest.

Friday, the four teams invade Griffith Stadium for the second game of the series and the third game, if necessary, will be played in the Stadium, August 13.

The other two league championships will also be decided in two of three series. The under 12 G-K section game pits Langston Capitol Cadillacs against Hayes Burlington Mills. The first game of this series will be played Friday in the Stadium, with the second game the next day.

In the G-K under-14 group, Langston meets Bundy's Mayflower Motors for the championship. The first two games of this series will also be played in the Stadium, August 12 and 13.

Mailander Girls Win

The Mailander girls softball team yesterday swept a twin bill from Cliff Cleaners of Wilmington, Del., last year's State champs. The local gals won, 1-0 and 3-2. Mailander now has an 18-2 won-lost record.

Mangrum Leads 'Tam' Field By Stroke; Snead Second

Hoodoo Rides on Putts

Chicago, Aug. 7 (AP).—Slender Lloyd Mangrum pulled up at the halfway mark of the rich Tam O'Shanter men's pro golf meet with a 10-under-par 134 today to maintain a one-stroke lead over arch-rival Sammy Snead.

The hoodoo was riding on both Mangrum's and Snead's short putts in the second round of the Tam variety show. They missed a half a dozen under 10 feet.

Mangrum, winner of Tam's assorted titles last year, belted a pair of 35s for a 70 to go with his torrid first round of 64.

Snead, who opened with a 67, added a 35—33—68 for a 135 over the par 36—36—72 course which rambles 6915 yards. He dropped a 70-foot seven-iron chip shot for a birdie 3 on the final hole to send some 2000 fans cheering.

Barron Close Behind

Grouped at 137 in the pro's side of the tourney, which carries a $3333 top prize, were Herman Barron, 1946, Tam champion, and Johnny Bulla. Barron added a 68 to his opening 69 while Bulla joined a 70 with a 67.

Pete Cooper of Ponte Vedra Beach, Fla., authored a second round 70 for 138 and fifth place. Clay Heafner with 69, Fred Haas, jr., of New Orleans with 71 and Chick Harbert with 73 fell into the 139 bracket.

Grouped at 140 were Ed (Porky) Oliver, Jimmy Demaret, Lawson Little, Jim Ferrier, Jim Turnesa, Herman Keiser, Chandler Harper, Harry Todd of Dallas and Jimmy Clark of Independence, Kans.

In the All-American Women's Open, Louise Suggs of Carrolton, Ga., fired a two-over-par 78 to add to an opening 72 for 150. Only one stroke away at 151 was Betty Jameson of San Antonio, Tex., another pro, who banged a 74 for today's best effort.

Bauer Leads Amateurs

Marlene Bauer, 15-year-old newly-crowned Western Junior Champion from Los Angeles, headed the amateurs with 155, good for third place. She punched a 77 today. Tied for fourth at 158 were defending champion Babe Zaharias of Denver and Dot Kielty of Los Angeles.

The pro men's field was trimmed from 150 to an even 100 for tomorrow's third round.

In the All-American amateur ring, Julius Boros of West Hartford, Conn., took command with a 136. He welded a 37-32—69 to his opening 67. Chicago's Al Beselink had a 68-74—142, and defending champion Frank Stranahan, 70-73—143.

Centerville Wins

Richmond, Va., Aug. 7 (AP).—Centerville of Richmond won the regional semi-pro baseball championship here tonight by defeating the Hurricane, W. Va., All-Stars 6 to 4.

Pittsburgh Also Loses Opener, 7-3

Pittsburgh, Aug. 7 (AP).—Dick Sisler, whose ninth-inning pinch single won yesterday's ball game for Philadelphia, went in as a pinch-hitter today and hit a three-run homer in the ninth inning of the nightcap to defeat Pittsburgh's faltering Pirates, 5 to 4, after the Quakers took the opener 7 to 3.

A crowd of 27,928 saw the Phils score the double win.

Hank Borowy scattered eight hits as he pitched the Phils to victory in the opener.

Ralph Kiner's three-run homer in the eighth—his twenty-ninth of the year—accounted for the Pirate runs. Del Ennis homered for the Phils with one aboard in the first.

The Pirates had rallied for four runs in the eighth inning of the second game to take a 4-2 lead. The rally was climaxed by Wally Westlake's three-run homer, his eighteenth of the year.

It didn't take the Phils long to get the runs back. Bill Nicholson opened the ninth with a double. Del Ennis walked. Willie Jones forced Ennis and then Sisler went in to bat for Mike Goliat. He hit the first pitch into the rightfield stands.

win his ninth game. He yielded eight hits in going the route for the fifteenth time in 22 tries this season.

Souchock struck the big blow in Gumpert's behalf in the second when he doubled in the first two Sox runs. Michaels drove in the other pair with a single in the fifth and an outfield fly two innings later.

The Nats' only run came in the seventh inning, stemming from Sherry Robertson's triple, one of three hits for him, and Eddie Robinson's infield out.

IN SHORT—Pierce threw eight straight strikes at Ortiz before fanning him in the fourth inning of the afterpiece. Roberto watched the first two sail by, fouled off the net five and missed the next one . . . Appling reported for duty at shortstop in both games and stretched his longevity performance to 2155, a mark which will undoubtedly stand until another Appling or Rabbit Maranville comes around. Dente fielded in Jim Dandy fashion in both games, reaching the high spot of his performance in the last inning of the first game by hauling in Malone's grounder through the box and routing it into a double play . . . Phil Berger, supervisor of the Nats' spring training recreational program at Orlando, Fla., took in the doubleheader . . . The Nats are idle today, but return to their chores Tuesday night, opening a two-night stand against the Athletics.

Missy Wins At Seabrook

Missy, well ridden by her owner, scored 21 points to best Toni Brewer's Sable who scored 12 points.

In the small pony division, Barbara (Bobbie) Gardner's Danny Boy, well ridden by his 6-year-old owner, won the championship with 13 points.

Tied for the reserve small pony championship were Cynthia Graffam's Thane of Wales and Billy Boyce, 3d's Spice, each with 11 points.

The ponies were judged on conformation and Judges Mrs. Betts Barr May and Col. Wayne O. Kester, gave the reserve to Thane of Wales.

In the medium pony division, Claire Taylor's Baby won the championship, while Randy Gardner's Mademoselle took home the reserve.

J. R. Miller's 153 Wins Senior Championship at Manor Club

By West McLean
Post Reporter

J. R. Miller won the 36-hole senior championship of Manor Country Club over the weekend with rounds of 78-75—153. The low net award went to G. N. MacKay, 86-82-168—30-138. Second net went to John Meyer, 161-22—139.

Mrs. L. R. Strong won the 9-hole ladies' tournament with a 48-12—36 and Mrs. Ada B. Lowe was second, 54-17—37.

PRINCE GEORGES—The Country team downed the City squad, 44½—42½, yesterday even though Gil Willet fired a 70, low for the day, for the City side. Low man on the Country totem pole was Norm Brown with a 73. Captains Bob Bowie of the Country and Jack Palmer of the City were both doused in the pool after the match

CHEVY CHASE—Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Bogue won the mixed four-ball tourney as Mr. Bogue had a 79-11—68 and the Missus, 91-11—80, for an aggregate of 148 for the team.

The runner-up slot went to Mr. and Mrs. Robert Wilson as the male half had a 76-9—67 and the fairer half turned in a 97-12—85 card to give them 152. Third place was taken by Mr. and Mrs. L. D. Nicholson, Mr. 84-12—72; Mrs. 105-22—83 for a total of 155.

BELLE HAVEN—Commander C. B. Brooks, 97-15—82 won the blind bogey event with second place ending in a tie between Maj. Robert Hall, 87-8—79 and J. A. Donaghue, 91-12—79.

WOODMONT—Lester Rosenberg and Julian Reis combined for an aggregate 165, which, with a 33 handicap, gave them a net 132 and first place in the club pro-am tournament. David Silverman and Rollie Lamensdorf posted a net 135 for second place..

WASHINGTON—H. H. Hair and W. R. McLister posted a best-ball 65 to take first place in the qualifying round for the Harrell Cup two-man team championships. Lew Swartout and Jim Gardner, 66; Claude Rippy and Sid Carroll, 67, and D. R. Munsees and M. L. Hamby, 69, were the other low qualifiers.

times spectacularly. Bogley's stroke variety earned many points, particularly his effective drop-shot technique in the third set.

Both young stars played deliberately and cautiously throughout the match. Gil avoided long baseline exchanges in which Richardson excels, and relied mainly upon forcing, either with angled shots or soft chops just over the net. Bogley's volleying was superb.

The boys' doubles title was won by Kuhn and Don Thompson of Jackson Heights, N. Y., 6—0, 6—4, from Al Harum of Coral Gables, Fla., and Leslie Ruthven of Boca Raton, Fla.

Bogley and Dick Squires of Bronxville, N. Y., won the junior doubles crown when they defeated the northern California team, Jerry de Witts of Oakland and Ernest du Bray of San Francisco, 8—6, 6—3, 6—2.

Bar Association Names Committees

Starts in October

2 Insurance Men Accept Chest Posts

Haggerty Loehl

Two insurance executives have accepted posts as leaders in the 1950 Community Chest campaign, which begins in October, the Community Chest Federation has announced.

They are Emil A. Loehl, supervisor of home office services for the Acadia Mutual Life Insurance Co. and William J. Haggerty, branch manager of the Occidental Life Insurance Co. of California.

Loehl, a Washington native who has worked in nearly all the Red Feather campaigns since 1929, will serve as executive assistant to Aaron Goldman, chairman of Business II unit, which covers about 18,000 firms and offices.

Haggerty, a former newspaper man with the Los Angeles Daily News, San Francisco Examiner and The Washington Post, will be chairman of Unit B of Business II, responsible for recruiting 150 to 200 solicitors of business contributions.

Attorney H. Mason Welch has been named chairman of the committee of nine which supervises the District Bar Association's legislative program, it was announced yesterday.

In announcing committee appointments for the coming year, James D. Mann, executive secretary of the association, said that more than 300 members of the group have volunteered to serve on committees.

The recently formed committee on mass purchasing for lawyers, which is to investigate means of reducing the cost of operating lawyers' offices, will be composed of Thomas M. Raysor, chairman, and Joseph O. Janousek, William J. Rowan and Leo N. McGuire.

Godfrey L. Munter has been reappointed as chairman of the Memorial Committee and John Alexander will be chairman of the legal aid committee.

The Journal Committee, which edits the association's monthly publication, will be headed by James J. Hayden, dean of Columbus University School of Law. Other members of this committee are John P. Moore, Nicholas J. Chase, R. G. Lamensdorf, Sol M. Alpher, Minnie A. Cheseldine, James C. Rogers, W. N. Baughman, Richard W. Galiher, Irving B. Yochelson, J. R. Benney and Charles S. Rhyne.

Appointment of members of other committees will be announced soon, Mann said.

Fearless Flinger Wins All at Park Concession Stand

Palisades Park, N. J., Aug. 7 (U.P.).—Bobby Pritchard, 16, of Newark, N. J. cleaned out a ball-throwing concession here today when he knocked down 3000 consecutive milk bottles.

The youth won every prize on the concession's shelves, for the first time in the history of the amusement park, and walked away with more than 400 assorted kewpie dolls, stuffed animals, figurines and pieces of china. He hired three taxis to take his prizes home.

The concessionaire, who had to rush to a warehouse to get additional prizes for tonight's business, said young Pritchard spent only $1, since he took many free throws in place of prizes.

Probe Hinted Into Award Given Pound

The Joint Congressional Committee on the Library of Congress may investigate the award by a Library group of a $1000 poetry prize to Ezra Pound.

Pound, who was charged but never tried for treason because of broadcasts he made from Italy during World War II, is a patient at St. Elizabeth Hospital.

Representatives Javits (R., N. Y.) and Patterson (R., Conn.) said in a joint statement yesterday they had received word the Joint Committee may open an injuiry soon.

Javits called for an investigation after the Fellows in American Letters of the Library of Congress awarded Pound the Bollingen prize for the work that "represents the highest achievement in American poetry."

Librarian of Congress Luther Evans said that if there is an investigation he hoped "it would concern itself with what are the real issues:

"1. Ought the Library of Congress be engaged in giving out prizes?

"2. Whether this group of Fellows in American Letters are representative, or whether it is an unbalanced group and not representative of the various scholarly groups?"

The librarian said he was "perfectly willing to go over and testify."

CIO Chief Denies Byrd Charges On Pamphlets

The Rev. Charles C. Webber, president of the Virginia CIO and director of the Virginia CIO-PAC, yesterday said neither of the CIO groups had charged Senator Byrd (D., Va.) with selling apples to the Government at exorbitant prices.

Senator Byrd had said in a statement that CIO circulars had made such charges against him. The Senator is one of Virginia's largest apple growers.

In denying that either State or National CIO groups had issued any such circulars, Mr. Webber declared he felt that Senator Byrd in his charges "has made an absolutely unjustifiable attack upon our organization and that he should apologize for it immediately."

Jack Kroll, director of the national CIO-PAC, had earlier made a similar denial and added that the organization did not circulate any pamphlets in connection with the recent primary election in Virginia.

Doctors Say Enzyme Doesn't Aid Cancer

San Francisco, Aug. 7 (AP).—University of California medical researchers contradicted today what they said were rumors that chymotrypsin, a milk-curdling substance produced in the small intestine, is beneficial against cancer.

Dr. Michael B. Shimkin and Dr. Howard Bierman reported using the enzyme on 10 cases of hopeless cancer.

There was no outward evidence of improvement in any of them, the researchers said. All the patients died.

Marine Wins Grand Prize At Pistol Tournament Here

Capt. T. E. Barrier, of the Headquarters Marine Corps, Washington, won the grand aggregate prize in the masters class at the Fifth Annual United States Park Police Pistol Tournament yesterday.

Captain Barrier fired a score of 2609 of a possible 3000 for 15 individual matches during the three-day tourney on the Park Police Pistol Range, Rock Creek Church and Bates rds. ne.

The veteran Marine marksman fired also a world record of 200 of a 200 possible in the .45-caliber pistol match Friday, surpassing the former 199-out-of-200 record of Maj. James R. Tucker, USMC, set in 1939.

Now assigned to duty as officer in charge of the target practice division at Marine Headquarters, Captain Barrier holds also the world record for the .45-caliber pistol over the National Matched Course of 292 out of 300 possible, fired at Miami in 1940 and equalled at Durham, N. C., last July.

Runners-up yesterday in the masters class were Sergt. T. R. Mitchell, USMC, Quantico, Va., 2596 out of 3000 possible, and Sergt. Mark W. Billing, USMC, also at Quantico, 2572 out of 3000 possible.

Other grand aggregate winners were: expert class, Pvt. Montia Bridges, Metropolitan Police, 2459 out of 3000; Lieut. Col. G. Funk, Marine Corps Headquarters, 2440 out of 3000, and Sergt. J. C. Hardy, USMC, Quantico, 2432 out of 3000; sharp shooting, Pvt. James E. Young, White House Police, 2384 out of 3000; Alton J. Coppridge, USMC, Durham, N. C., 2381 out of 3000, and Raymond C. Clemsen, Sparrows Point, Md., Police, 2309 out of 3000; and marksmen, R. A. Dobart, 2412 out of 3000; M. F. Carter, 2204 out of 3000, and F. F. Rumble, 2196 out of 3000, all of Baltimore County Police, Towson, Md.

The Loeffler Trophy was awarded in police, service and civilian team classes.

Winner in the police class was the Metropolitan Police team with a score of 1130 out of 1200. The Metropolitan Police also annexed the Secretary of the Interior Pistol Trophy Saturday, scoring 1123 out of 1200. Second was the Virginia State Police with 1122 out of 1200, and third the White House Police, 1102 out of 1200. The White House Police finished second in the Saturday shooting with a count of 1078 out of 1200.

Service winners were Marine Corps School, Quantico, Team No. 1, 1158 out of 1200; Headquarters Marine Corps, 1127 out of 1200, and Marine Corps School Team No. 2, 1123 out of 1200.

Winners in the civilian shooting were the Monumental Rifle and Pistol Club of Baltimore, 1112 out of 1200; F. O. P. Gun Club of Wyomissing, Pa., 1106 out of 1200, and the civilian team of the Twelfth Precinct Pistol Club, 1106 out of 1200.

Marauder Kills 1, Maims 4

Crystal Beach, Fla., Aug. 7 (AP).—A slashing, shooting and mauling intruder killed one person and badly injured four others at a home here today.

The highway patrol said the killer was either drunk or crazed. They described him as about 30 years old.

The death victim was 70-year-old Norman Browne, found tied spread-eagle on his bed, his throat, stomach anl wrists slashed.

His wife, Mrs. Annie E. Browne, about 60, was mangled. She had knife wounds and other injuries which appeared to have been inflicted by a shotgun blast.

Three members of another family surprised the intruder at the Browne home and drew his murderous fury. They were Miles Crum, about 36, a grocer; his wife, and their 3-year-old child.

Crum was shot, Mrs. Crum beaten and slashed, and the child battered with an unidentified object.

Patrolmen and police organized a search force to comb the area for the slayer.

Crystal Beach is a Florida West Coast community 30 miles from Tampa.

Order Would Seek To 'Blacklist' UPWA In Federal Agencies

A new employe relations policy is being drafted to cover all Federal agencies. The most interesting feature is this:

Government officials would be directed to deal only with those employe groups whose officials have signed anti-Communist affidavits.

The pending order, obviously, is a left-handed attempt to "blacklist" CIO's left-wing United Public Workers in all Federal agencies. UPWA's top officers have refused to sign the NLRB affidavits and most Federal officials don't want to have to deal with them on any basis.

STORY: A young lady applied for a Federal job here and her conversation with an interviewer went like this:

"Do you have veterans' preference?"

"Are you asking me if I prefer veterans?" the girl said after a thoughtful pause, "I sure do prefer them. Two of my best boy friends are veterans."

INTERNS: Fourteen young Federal employes have been selected by Civil Service for its tenth intern program to begin early next month. They are: Seymour Steiglitz of Agriculture, Lorenz C. Armstrong, Commerce; William L. Wooten, Federal Security; Lillian M. Banahan, NLRB; Judson H. Bell, Edward N. Bowen, Walter B. Goldfinger, Boyd W. Hinds and Thomas R. McEntegart, Navy; Malcolm A. Burrows, Martha J. Harris and Herbert E. Leonard, VA, and M. B. Huff, Panama Canal.

The program is conducted twice a year to discover and train young Federal workers with outstanding administrative ability. The successful interns usually land better jobs.

JOB NEWS: A new Civil Service exam for editorial positions here will be announced in two weeks. Starting salaries will be from $2974 to $4103. Civil Service's Fourth Regional Office has a grade 1 through 4 general clerical exam open to fill jobs in Virginia, except in Arlington County and Alexandria. Get details at Tempo Building R, 3d st. and Jefferson dr. sw., or in any Virginia postoffice . . . The Military District of Washington has exams open for construction equipment operators and foremen. Salaries: $1.13 to $2 an hour. Room 2E-1030 of the Pentagon has all details.

VETERANS' ADMINISTRATION here and in nearby States has openings for therapists to pay $2974 to $3727 to start. Get details at VA's central office here . . . The Civil Service Board at Camp Lee, Va., has a test open for textile technologist to pay $4479 to start . . . The National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics at Langley Air Force Base, Va., will close its tests the end of this month for scientific artist, $4479, and electronic instrument maker, $3993 to $4222 . . . Unless their appointments are converted to probational by October 1, these war service and temporary employes here must be fired: general instrument maker, SP-4 through 8; mechanical design and development instrument maker, P-3, and office appliance repairman, CPC-4 through 8.

Edward G. Kemp, general counsel of the Budget Bureau, is reported to have an excellent chance to be appointed to one of the new Federal judgeships. He's protege of the late Supreme Court Justice Frank Murphy . . . Arthur S. Flemming, the former GOP Civil Service commissioner, is working on a personnel program for the United Nations . . . At least one member of the Senate Postoffice and Civil Service Committee and two members of the House committee are threatening to resign. The pressure, they say, from the many and warring employe groups is too much to take.

MILITARY: Defense Secretary Johnson still is talking about a possible reduction of 200,000 of his 900,000 civilian employes in the next year. But he's emphatic on this point—that no military people be placed in abolished civilian jobs.

During debate on the unification bill, Chairman Vinson of the House Military Affairs Committee said: "By saving we do not mean the closing of a Navy Yard at Charleston or Philadelphia unless such a closing still leaves the fleet adequately supported and the other Navy Yards' strength is not correspondingly increased. By savings we do not mean a reduction in the strength of military personnel or civilian personnel unless it leaves the armed forces capable of performing the same military missions they could support previous to such reductions."

Job Printers Vote Strike; Notify ITU

Union Officials Say Negotiations Stalemated After 3-Month Talks

AFL commercial printers yesterday voted to ask their international executive board for authority to strike against the District's job printing establishments over wages.

The vote came after almost three months of negotiations between the printers, represented by Columbia Typographical Union No. 101, and some 50 printer employers in the Graphic Arts Association. Union members numbered about 300.

Sought 40-Cent Increase

Spokesmen for the printers originally asked an increase of 40 cents an hour, and the job printing firms sought a reduction of 36 cents an hour. In 11 bargaining sessions, however, the union scaled down its demands to a 10-cent-an-hour raise, and employers offered to continue the present scale of $2.36 an hour.

Union officials said yesterday the situation had reached a stalemate which led to yesterday's special meeting at the Pythian Temple. The strike authority request was voted, 77 to 5, they reported.

The working contract between the union and the printing establishments runs for two years until August 10, 1950, but a provision for wage reopening was used to start discussions on May 11.

McArdle Made Plea

The dispute over wages was dramatized last month when Walter F. McArdle, chairman of the wage scale committee for the Graphic Arts Association, appeared before the union membership to plead his case against wage raises.

McArdle declared then that the demanded wage scale would drive business to Baltimore. The day scale there, he said, is $2 an hour for a 40-hour week.

While the cost of living has advanced 64.1 per cent since 1940, McArdle told the printers, their wages have increased 100 per cent.

The unique appearance was the result of an invitation from Union President James J. O'Connor, who took up the printing firm owners' challenge that he believed he could convince the rank and file of the union against seeking wage increases.

Mina Cravi Scores in 'La Boheme'

By Paul Hume

Let me tell you about Mina Cravi who sang Mimi last night in La Boheme at the Watergate.

She is one of the finest artists appearing today on American opera stages. Her art is far beyond mere considerations of technical control of a voice, or of knowing a certain number of roles. Miss Cravi penetrates into the subtlest essence of anything she sings. She times each phrase and each word therein for the finest total effect, not out of any desire to achieve some untoward end but in order to make the entire part assume its proper proportion.

Cravi

Her enunciation is a joy to hear. But far more enthralling is the way she handles the nuances of music. She modulates not only her arias, but her line when others are singing. Thus in the second act she performed a most beautiful, yet difficult feat by reducing her high A just before Musetta brought out a high B.

In all she sang, Mima Cravi showed herself a rare artist, I have not seen a Mimi equal her acting since Amelita Galli-Curci sang the role for her last opera performance over 10 years ago.

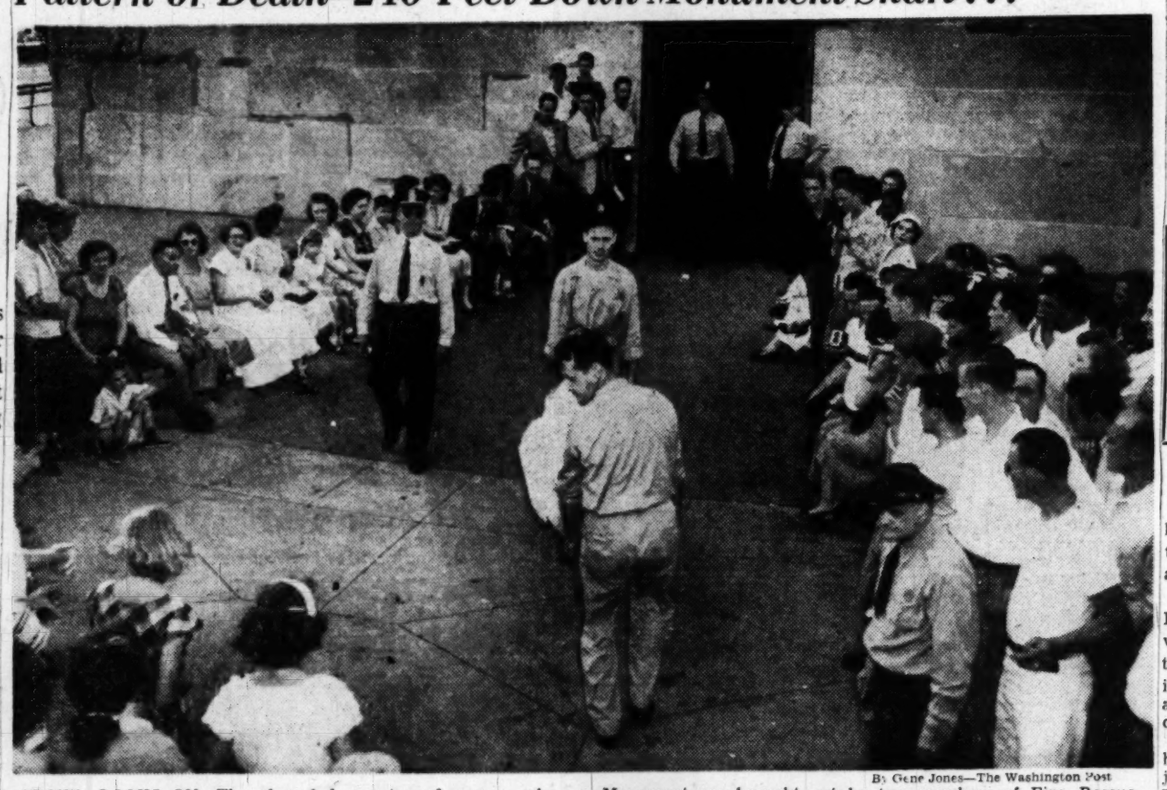
Thomas Hayward was a gentle Rudolfo. His voice is light for the part but with it he sings many of the soft notes Puccini calls for which other tenors so often mistreat. He must not strain to carry the role. Already there is one indication that he may be trying more than he should: he squints his eyes closed on every single high note he sings. This is not serious but it is not a good sign. He gave a fine high C in act one and provided memorable support for Cravi at all times.

The usual horseplay between the four Bohemains in acts one and four went all right, though the last act business was rather lifeless. Mollie Knight was a good Musetta, singing the waltz with a real voice instead of yipping it as so many sopranos incorrectly do.

The opera was by far the best sung by its principals of any the San Carlo company has yet brought to the Watergate. The strings in the orchestra find Puccini's divided writing too much for them but otherwise sounded as usual. William Wilderman must not be forgotten. He gave Colline the place the part deserves. Boheme holds up wonderfully these days and last night it had one of the most beautiful Mimis in its history.

Tonight: Carmen with Winifred Heidt, Mina Cravi and Vasso Argyris.

Pattern of Death—240 Feet Down Monument Shaft . . .



CROWD LOOKS ON—The shrouded remains of a man who plunged 240 feet down the elevator shaft at the Washington Monument are brought out by two members of Fire Rescue Squad No. 1

240-Ft. Leap Kills Man

the Naval Ordnance Laboratory at White Oak, Md.

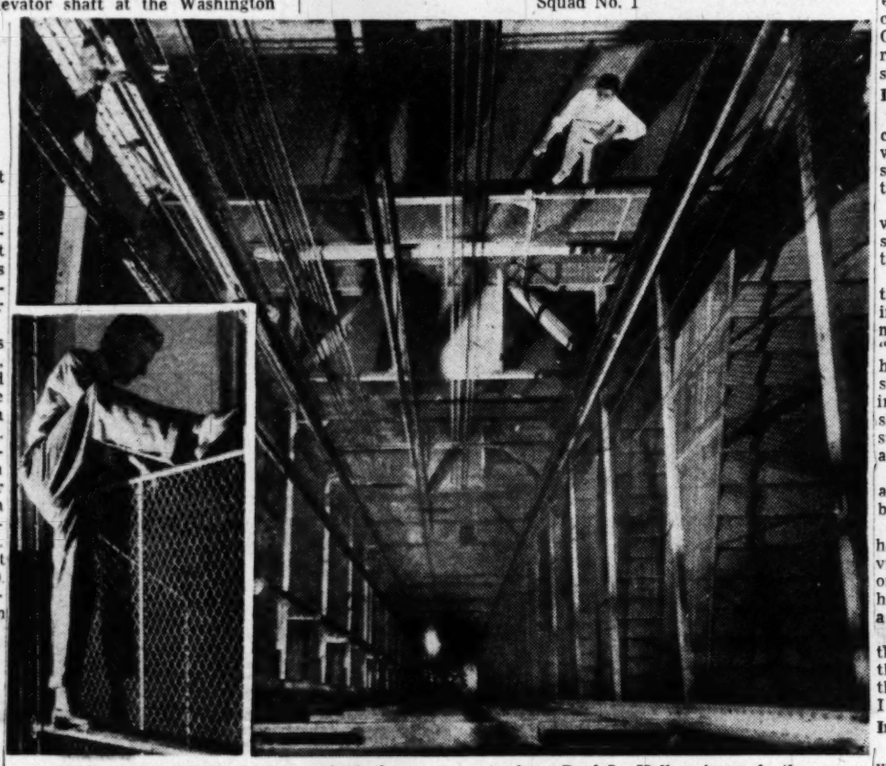
Pvt. John M. Gyakum of the United States Park Police, investigating the suicide, set the leap at 240 feet because of fingerprints and dust smudges on the wire-mesh safety guard where Holker had climbed for the plunge.

Holker's 1938 Chevrolet was found parked near the Monument.

While Holker's was the second shaft suicide to be recorded at the Monument, two death leaps from Monument windows have occurred.

On November 20, 1926, a mentally-ill war veteran jumped from one of the north windows near the top. Two days later a man hurled himself from an east window. The windows are now barred.

Holker came to the District from Wheeling, W. Va., in 1940. He has a sister—a nun in West Virginia—and a brother and sister in Germany.



AT THE MONUMENT—Lights and shadows form an eerie pattern through the beams and cables of the Washington Monument's elevator shaft, an hour after a man leaped to his death. Schedule Set For School Registration

A schedule for registration of Arlington County school pupils was announced yesterday by County Superintendent William A. Early. Classes will begin Tuesday, September 6.

On Tuesday, August 30, all elementary and junior high students and students of Hoffman-Boston High School will register.

Junior high students, and seventh graders who will attend classes at Woodrow Wilson and Thomas Nelson Page Schools and the new building at Old Dominion dr. and N. 28th st., will register at 9:30 a. m. that day.

Only eighth-graders at Washington-Lee last year will be accepted there for ninth-grade studies. They, too, will register at 9:30 a. m., August 30. No new seventh or eighth-graders will be accepted at Washington-Lee.

Former elementary students attending the same schools in which they were enrolled last year will register from 9 to 10 a. m., August 30. Beginning pupils and transfers will register from 10 a. m. to noon.

At Washington-Lee High School, senior high students are to register August 31, September 1 and 2.

Tenth-graders will report at 9:30 a. m., August 31, for registration, and at the same time September 1 for assignment to home rooms and attendance at an orientation program.

Eleventh graders will register September 1 and twelfth graders, September 2.

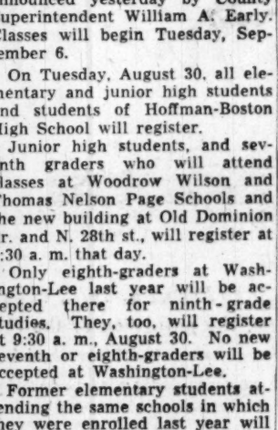
Hazard Hints



1. Have a plan for aiding an injured person. Remember that first aid is only temporary. Serious bleeding, stoppage of breath, and poisoning must be treated immediately.

Otherwise, keep the injured person lying down, quiet, and warm. If he is moved, his injury is apt to be increased. Call a physician or ambulance immediately.

Falls Church's First Year As a City Was Full of Action

By Judith Spivak
Post Reporter

The fledgling city of Falls Church has gone through nearly a year since it exchanged its town status for that of a second class city on August 16, 1948, by act of Fairfax Circuit Court.

Plenty of action has taken place since then in that pleasant Virginia suburb 7 miles from Washington.

For one thing, the city launched a last-ditch fight for annexation of a 14-square-mile chunk of prosperous adjacent Fairfax County territory.

First legal steps in what is turning into a fierce tussle with the county were taken last month when the city filed its annexation suit in Fairfax Circuit Court.

Changes Effected

Meanwhile, the city's changes as its first birthday rolls around include:

1. Doubling of its police force, now up to 14 men.

2. Near completion of a one-million-dollar water system, which will increase its water supply 15 times, and is scheduled to be finished in September.

3. Reduction of its general tax rate 30 cents a hundred dollars of assessed valuation, effective in the 1950 fiscal year. (A 40-cent levy, previously paid to Fairfax County, was automatically dropped, but a 10-cent increase in the city's fire tax was voted when the budget was approved by the town council last month.)

The city's elected nine-man council exercises greatly increased powers under its second class status, including that of taxation and of appointing a city manager, city attorney and city clerk.

The city still contributes, on a prorata basis, to the upkeep of Fairfax County higher-courts, the Commonwealth's attorney's office and the sheriff's office.

More Statistics on City

Here are a few more statistics:

The city's assessed valuation has grown from about $5,600,000 a year ago, to approximately six million dollars today.

Building permits for more than $457,000 worth of new buildings and improvements were issued during the first 10 months of the city's life. In July, first month of the new fiscal year, building permits worth about $255,000 were applied for.

Bank deposits totaling approximately $4,650,000 were held in the Falls Church Bank, as of April, 1949.

The city's population, fixed at 5338 a year ago, is now estimated at 7500 by City Manager Roy F. Dunn.

Other marks in the city's first year include approval in April of a master zoning plan, allowing an approximate doubling of the commercial area, and approval last month of a $314,938 budget for the 1950 fiscal year.

A $46,432 sum for capital outlay is down in the new budget, as compared with $39,779.97 spent similarly in the first 10 months of its existence.

As for the future, the city's two big problems are its schools and annexation.

Though it won legal jurisdiction over its own school system in June, the glow of victory was dimmed by Fairfax County's refusal to turn over to Falls Church two of the three school buildings within the city limits.

Judge C. G. Quesenberry has indicated in Fairfax Circuit Court he will support the county in its retention of the Falls Church High School and the newly built Oak Street Elementary School.

There is also the proposed three-million-dollar bond issue for sewers in Fairfax County's Sanitary District No. 1. If the issue is approved, Fairfax will probably increase its charges to the city for sewage disposal as much as ten times present rates, according to Fairfax sanitary engineer, J. Corbalis. This in turn would force the city to increase its present minimum $18 yearly sewer charge to city residents, City Manager Dunn admits.

Falls Church Cuts First Birthday Cake Saturday

Falls Church will hold its first official birthday celebration as a second class Virginia city on Saturday, complete with a 12-foot birthday cake.

Festivities will last from 2 to 11 p. m. on Joseph Arnold's Walnut Hill home grounds on the Annandale road. Proceeds from the $1.20 admission charge will go toward a high school stadium fund.

Scheduled to take part in the birthday party are Army Air Force and Fort Belvoir Bands, a popular dance orchestra, State officials and radio-television stars. Free bus transportation will be provided on the hour, from the intersection of Washington and Broad sts. in Falls Church.

Woman Beaten To Death Here; Man Also Slain

A physician, summoned by a mysterious caller, yesterday morning found a 30-year-old woman beaten to death in her bed at 1742 8th st. nw.

The woman, identified as Mrs. Alethea Flowers, of the 8th st. address, was one of two persons slain here over the weekend.

The other was James E. Patterson, 27, of 456 Massachusetts ave. nw., who was stabbed Saturday night with an ice pick and died at Casualty Hospital shortly after midnight.

Police said Patterson was stabbed on the forehead during an altercation in a hallway at 225 D st. nw.

About 2 a. m. yesterday, Sylvester Kitrell, 25, of the D st. address, gave himself up to police at First Precinct station, telling them he had stabbed Patterson during an argument over a woman.

Held For Inquest

Kitrell was held for a coroner's inquest at 11:30 a. m. today.

He told police he stabbed Patterson in self-defense after Patterson had attacked him with a knife. Police, however, said they found no knife on Patterson or in the hallway.

Mrs. Flowers was found by Dr. Raymond A. Davis, 1821 8th st. nw., who told police he received a call from an unidentified man about 9:15 a. m. yesterday to come to 1742 8th st. nw.

He was unable to obtain admittance, he said, and returned to his office. A second call was received about 9:45 a. m., he said. This time the caller said he would be there to let the doctor in.

Dr. Davis said he found the woman lying in a bed. He pronounced her dead and summoned police after noticing that she had numerous bruises all over her body.

Caller Leaves

The mysterious caller, meanwhile, left, saying he would notify the woman's sister, and did not return, Dr. Davis said. From a photograph in the apartment, the physician identified the man as Eddie Poe, 31, who police said, was the woman's common-law husband. A lookout was broadcast for Poe for questioning.

Deputy Coroner Richard M. Rosenberg said the woman was beaten to death. She had suffered multiple bruises of the head, face, arms, legs and body and a cerebral concussion, he said.

Police Group Supports Chief In Ouster Fight

Council to Meet Tuesday to Decide On Suspension of Orme by Manager

By Robert P. Jordan
Post Reporter

The Montgomery County Policemen's Association yesterday threw unanimous support behind Police Chief Charles M. Orme, whose ouster has been demanded by County Manager Irving G. McNayr.

In a specially called session, the association approved a four-point resolution backing police methods carried out by Chief Orme and urgently requested the County Council lift his suspension and restore the veteran officer to duty.

The action was indicative of mounting sentiment over the county favoring Orme's retention. A special meeting of the Allied Civic Group, whose delegates represent 22 Silver Spring citizens organizations, will be held tonight to consider the situation.

McNayr, who suspended the police chief Friday, said the "immediate cause" was a statement the 57-year-old officer made to the press Wednesday in which he doubted the effectiveness of one-man police cars.

A six-month test of patrol cars manned by individual policemen began August 1 throughout the county. It was ordered by the council two weeks ago upon McNayr's recommendation.

The county manager asserted yesterday that "there are other reasons" which led to Orme's suspension, but declined to outline them.

"That will all come out at the council meeting," he said. The council, which will meet at 2 p. m. Tuesday, is to review McNayr's action at that time. His recommendation, McNayr said, will be that Orme be removed.

"It's purely a matter of a man disobeying orders," the county manager said.

The suspended chief, reached at his Gaithersburg home, declared the suspension had been "entirely a surprise" to him. "It all came out of a clear sky," he said. "There are no other matters that I know about."

The policemen's association, at conclusion of more than an hour's discussion, unanimously supported:

1. All reasons set forth by Chief Orme in denouncing the effectiveness of one-man patrol cars.

2. The present police system which has given "the citizens and their property excellent protection." The association added that the police department, "which is responsible for the protection of lives and property in the country's No. 1 ranking county, should not be experimented with."

3. No "drastic" changes in operating methods such as a one-man patrol car be put into effect unless approved by the chief of police and his staff, who have had years of experience in successfully policing Montgomery County.

4. Careful council consideration of its decision, and urgently requested the chief's suspension be lifted.

According to Corpl. John T. Higdon, association president, the meeting was called upon request of numerous officers who felt the body should take action.

Corporal Higdon said nearly every officer who was not on duty was present.

The Montgomery County Press Association already has adopted a resolution deploring Orme's suspension and asking his restoration to duty.

Wife Tells Of Love for Slain Soldier

By William H. Smith
Post Reporter

"He was a wonderful guy when he wasn't drinking. I still love him, though I've wondered time and again why I do."

Deliberately and dry-eyed Mrs. Ruth Maxwell summed up in these words the feeling she holds for the 30-year-old Army corporal she is accused of slaying during an altercation outside their Alexandria rooming house July 30.

The attractive 29-year-old widow, held without bond in Alexandria jail on a charge of murder, told The Washington Post yesterday of events which led up to the fatal cutting of her husband, Corpl. Gardner Maxwell, whom she married 19 months ago after a courtship of less than a month.

Liquor Discordant Note

Although the quarrel which preceded Corporal Maxwell's death was about money, Mrs. Maxwell said the one discordant note in their brief marriage was liquor.

"We never quarreled when he wasn't drinking, and when he was sober, we had such a wonderful time together," she said.

When he wasn't sober—a condition which, she said, arose with increasing frequency in recent months—Corporal Maxwell was a "different person," according to his wife. It was on such an occasion that she used a milk bottle in an attempt to defend herself, she said, from his blows as they stood at the entrance to their home at 732 N. Washington st.

"I only remember that I hit him, and he was lying on the ground bleeding," she said.

It was not the first time she had had to defend herself against his violence, Mrs. Maxwell said. On one occasion, after he had beaten her, she recalled striking him with a beer bottle.

"He just looked stunned, and then got a broom and cleaned up the place. I was hoping the same thing would happen this time when I hit him."

Injury Laid to Husband

For the first time, Mrs. Maxwell attributed to her husband a spine injury that forced her to give up her job as a waitress in an Alexandria restaurant about a month ago. In an earlier statement to police, she had said the injury resulted from a fall in the bathtub.

"We made up that story because I had to go to the Fort Belvoir Hospital for treatment, and I didn't want to embarrass him," Mrs. Maxwell said.

Her enforced unemployment, resulting from the injury, was a contributing factor to the quarrel over finances on the night her husband was killed, according to Mrs. Maxwel.

She and Corporal Maxwell met in Tacoma, Wash., in January, 1946, and were married less than a month later, Mrs. Maxwell related. Despite the short courtship, "I was certain that I loved him and I'm still certain."

Her marriage to Corporal Maxwell took place five years after her divorce from a first husband. She has two children by the first marriage. Temporary custody of the children has been awarded jointly to her father in Sioux Falls, S. Dak., and the State of South Dakota.

Her attorney, Walter I. Young, will appear before Judge William P. Woolls in Alexandria Corporation Court today in an effort to have bond set for her release, pending the grand jury term in September. Two such requests already have been denied by the court.

Husband Tried To Kill Her, Wife Says

A 51-year-old Hyattsville woman swore out a warrant early yesterday charging her estranged husband with assault with intent to kill following a dispute Saturday night in which she was grazed by a bullet and her husband suffered a severe heart attack.

The woman, Mrs. Elsa Rust, was treated for slight lacerations of the left cheek and ear following the affair which occurred in the home of her daughter, Mrs. Helen Huber, at 6210 41st ave. Hyattsville, where she has been living for several months.

According to Prince Georges County Police Corp. Roland Sweitzer, the husband, James C. Rust, 57, of 5721 39th ave., Hyattsville, entered the living room of the Huber home. A shot was fired from a .22 caliber rifle with the bullet continuing out of the window after grazing Mrs. Rust's face, he said.

During the ensuing struggle for the weapon, Rust slumped to the floor, the policeman said. He was admitted to Leland Memorial Hospital, Riverdale, for treatment of shock and a heart condition. Hospital authorities said last night his condition was good.

Racial Adviser Due In District Today

Dr. Joseph D. Lohman, University of Chicago sociologist and race relations specialist, will arrive here today to advise Interior Department officials trying to solve the District swimming pool problem.

Dr. Lohman

Dr. Lohman, who directed the staff work in last year's National Committee on Segregation in the Nation's Capital, was invited to come by officials of the Interior Department's National Park Service, a spokesman said.

He is epected to hold seminars with policemen, Park and District recreation officials, newspapermen and others on the local race relations situation. He probably will make recommendations during such seminars, an official said.

Closed After Disturbances

Mixed swimming has taken place this summer at Anacostia and McKinley pools, and racial disturbances at Anacostia caused Secretary of the Interior J. A. Krug to close that pool on June 29.

Anacostia has remained closed up to the present while Interior and District Recreation Board officials have been negotiating over future segregation policy in the six District public pools. There are prospects that the diferences between them may be settled this week.

Dr. Lohman is expected to be here about a week. He was invited to come after Edward J. Kelly, assistant to the superintendent of National Capital Parks, and Police Capt. Mark Raspberry went to Chicago to talk with him and several officials. Dr. Lohman is an unofficial race relations adviser for the city. He has done this work in other cities also, including Gary, Ind.

Chicago System Discussed

They conferred also on how Chicago handles race relations in recreation with Chicago police, the mayor and members of the city council, recreation officials and members of the Chicago Park District Commission.

Dr. Lohman was formerly associate director for race relations of the Julius Rosenwald Fund.

Meanwhile, Secretary Krug will be presented today with a "compromise proposal" on the terms of the proposed taking over of the pools by the District Recreation Board.

District board members and Interior officials met Friday and worked out the proposal, which has not been made public.

The deadlock has been over the Recreation Board's contention that it will not take over the pools except on its own terms, including segregation of the pools into four for whites and two for Negroes.

Krug, however, has stated he would permit "no backward step," apparently meaning he would not permit the board to require segregation at the Anacostia and McKinley swimming pools.

Mrs. Stewart Rites to Be Held Tuesday

Funeral services for Nella C. Stewart, 58, wife of Washington Correspondent Orville H. Stewart, will be held at 9 a. m. Tuesday at St. Martin's Church, North Capitol and T sts. Burial will be in Fort Lincoln Cemetery.

Mrs. Stewart died of carcinoma at Homeopathic Hospital Saturday midnight after a year's illness.

Mrs. Stewart's avocation was breeding Persian cats. She was a former vice president and director of the Cat Fancier's Association, Inc., and in 1946 organized and presided over the Cat Fanciers of Washington.

In addition to her husband, she is survived by a foster son, Glenn Gemeinhardt, of the T st. address.

Usher Overcome, Burned Fighting Fire in Theater

An 18-year-old usher was overcome by smoke and burned on the foot fighting a broom closet fire last night at the Savoy Theater, 14th and Park rd. nw.

The victim, Will Schantz, 459 Delafield pl. nw., was treated at Emergency Hospital

The fire was confined to the closest and most of 900 patrons at the theater remained in their seats watching the film. Streetcars on 14th st. were blocked and automobile traffic diverted for 25 minutes.

The closet is in the lobby next to the ticket office.

Safecrackers Net Nothing in Two Attempts

Safecrackers were foiled in two attempts at fund collecting at the Heffron Plumbing and Heating Co., 220 L st. ne., Saturday night.

Frank Johnson, janitor for the concern, reported to police that he found the front window broken yesterday morning and two safes damaged.

A small safe in the rear office had been opened, he said, by knocking off the dial but the safe had nothing in it, he said. The hinges had been knocked off a larger safe in the front office, he said, but the safe was not opened. Contents of this safe could not be immediately learned, police said.

Girl, 3, Reported Missing Here

A brown-haired, fair complexioned 3-year-old girl, clad only in white underpants, was reported missing last night by her worried parents.

The girl, Geraldine Kline, has been missing since 8 a. m. yesterday, her father, Earl Kline, 1319 K st. se., told police. The police lookout described her as three feet tall and weighing 30 pounds.

Mrs. E. A. Hind Dies at 68; Rites Tuesday

Mrs. Katherine Stilley Bonner Hind, 68, widow of Maj. Ernest Alfred Hind, died Saturday at her home, Martha's Acres, Brickyard rd., Bethesda.

Mrs. Hind, a former teacher in schools of Beaufort County, N. C., and at Atlantic Christian College and the University of North Carolina, was an extensive traveler.

She visited throughout Europe and lived at times in Puerto Rico and Cuba.

Books were one of her favorite enjoyments and while in Cuba she organized a book discussion group at the Women's Club of Havana. She also was interested in gardening, antiques and house architecture and made a hobby of collecting old Bibles.

Her interests were varied and included world affairs, libraries and the church. She also was active in the League of Women Voters of West Montgomery County.

During World War I she was in charge of issuing Liberty Loan bonds to officer personnel of the armed services for the Treasury Department.

She was born in Washington, N. C., the daughter of Owen Kelly and Emily Martha Warren Stilley.

Surviving are a son, Henry S. Bonner of Havana, Cuba; a daughter, Mrs. Guy R. Perry of Washington; a sister, Mrs. Owen Carlyle Stilley of Bethesda, and a granddaughter, Mrs. James C. Higbie of Bethesda.

Funeral services will be held at 10:30 a. m. Tuesday at the Robert Pumphrey funeral home, Bethesda. Interment will be in Arlington Cemetery.

Walter S. Gray

Funeral services for Walter S. Gray, 77, retired railroad employe who died Friday at Sibley Hospital after a brief illness, will be held at noon today at Forest Lawn Cemetery, Richmond.

A native of Culpeper County, Va., Mr. Gray was educated in Richmond public schools and was employed there as an architectural draftsman for many years.

He entered railroad service in Roanoke with the Norfolk & Western Railway Co. Mr. Gray moved here about 1912 where he was employed in architectural work by the Southern Railway System for 30 years. He retired in 1942.

Mr. Gray is survived by his wife, Mrs. Florence Trent Gray, of 4306 Lorcom lane, Arlington, and a brother, Edward Gray, 1621 T st. nw. He was the son of the late Edward and Julia Somerville Gray, of Richmond.

In Memoriam

A booklet of 101 "In Memoriam" tributes suitable for publication is now available without charge. Remembrances for all members of the family and for friends are included. The booklet may be obtained at the front counter in the Post building, by telephoning your request, or by writing to the Washington Post Classified Advertising Department, Washington 4, D. C.

Lieut. Lester A. Sprinkle, Jr., Dies; Funeral Set Tuesday

First Lieut. Lester A. Sprinkle, jr., USA, aide to Maj. Gen. Hobart B. Gay, former commanding general of the military district of Washington, died yesterday at Walter Reed Hospital.

Lieut. Sprinkle

Lieutenant Sprinkle first became ill 15 months ago, just after he was assigned as aide to General Gay, and has been hospitalized intermittently since then.

A native of Fort Raleigh, Kans., Lieutenant Sprinkle graduated from West Point in 1945. He is the son of Col. Lester A. Sprinkle, plans and training officer of the military district of Washington.

Lieutenant Sprinkle attended the Infantry School at Fort Benning, Ga., after he left West Point, and then spent 2½ years in Japan with the First Cavalry Division.

He was transferred to the Third Infantry Regiment at Fort McNair and assigned to General Gay in May, 1948.

He leaves his wife, the former Florence M. Nowack of Reading, Pa., whom he married in 1946, and a daughter, Sandra. Also surviving are his parents, Col. and Mrs. Lester A. Sprinkle, 1200 S. Oakcrest rd., Arlington.

Funeral services will be held at 10 a. m. Tuesday in the Fort Myer Chapel. Burial will be in Arlington Cemetery.

On August 6, 1874, when the American Building Association opened for business, the population of the Nation's capital was slightly over 150,000 souls. The War between the States had been over scarcely nine years, but already the influx of new residents was becoming apparent.

The organizers of the American were men with keen vision, able leaders who foresaw the great city of the future on the banks of the Potomac. Their idea was to invite the savings, large and small, of thrifty citizens and in turn, loan the money to worthwhile prospective home owners in order that they could buy or build the "castle of their dreams."

In the beginning, activities of the little association were confined to the southeast portion of the city, but as Washington began to grow in all directions, savings share accounts and home loans were accepted from outside the original territory.

Looking backward on the three-quarters of a century that has elapsed, the men who operate the American cannot help but feel a great sense of pardonable pride in the achievements of this association. We have invested millions of dollars in the safest security in the world, the Home, and today we can see in this mighty capital of ours thousands of residences that have been constructed for happy families through the medium of an American home loan.

To our many, many loyal customers and other friends, we extend on this, our Diamond Jubilee anniversary, a promise for a continuation of the painstaking, efficient savings and loan service that has transformed this association from a small operation with a handful of patrons to the $28,000,000 institution of today. We pledge you that we will redouble our efforts to the end that you who use our services will be happy to call the American your savings and loan home.

One on the Aisle—

Montgomery Clift Is Not Amused

By Richard L. Coe

WHAT THEY'RE DOING: Montgomery Clift, just back from Europe, is wondering if Lazar Wechsler will ever make good the percentage money Monty was to have received from "The Search." . . . Therese Bonney, the celebrated photographer whose idea "The Search" was, is wondering along the same lines about her own credit and percentage deal . . . Erin O'Brien-Moore, opening in "The Heiress" tomorrow night at Olney, is on the verge of biting her nails over finding a good script for next season; "Where," asks Erin, "are the playwrights?" . . . As the former wife of AP drama critic Mark Barron, Erin's had enough first nighting to know a good script when she sees one . . . And a bum one . . . E street's Miss Cline, the town's most dogged theatergoer, up from her new post in Richmond, where theater is a vacuum, much to the lady's disgust . . . Con Colleano, jr., of the British theater family, most recently seen here at the Dupont in that Nino Martini movie, is top contender for the male lead in "A Streetcar Named Desire," which Sir Laurence Olivier is to direct with his wife, Vivien Leigh, in the Jessica Tandy role.

TOMMY WONDER, back at the Capitol in his natty dancing act after five years, returns next Monday to Joan Blondell's "Happy Birthday" company in Boston . . . He relates that all that trouble in Princeton, wherein that manager deplored Joan's hitting him with ONE Kleenex, was a petty business indeed and that at four in the morning Mike Todd's gift of chow to the company was most welcome indeed . . . Tommy's just had 22 months on the road in "Annie Get Your Gun," but "Washington's wonderful" . . . Mae West has taken her "Diamond Lil" to Central City's Opera House; that rococo Colorado site seems built for Mae; her ankle's okay.

"OKLAHOMA!" which has been in abeyance for the summer, is reforming in Gotham for a umpteenth transcontinental tour . . . Gosh darned if John Mason Brown, his editorship of the twenty-fifth anniversary number of the Saturday Review now on the stands, hasn't got another collection of his pieces ready for the bookstores; "Morning Faces" is the title; publication day, September 7 . . . What a crowd of celebs this week at Dick Aldrich's Cape Playhouse, where Cornel Wilde, Patricia Knight, Helen Hayes, Kent Smith, Mary MacArthur and Gertrude Lawrence are in residence . . . Wilde and his Knightly wife are doing a new comedy-drama, "Western Wind." . . . Miss Hayes is rehearsing "Good Housekeeping," which will be along next month at Olney . . . Gertie gets in today from London.

NOBLE SISSLE, the "Shuffle Along" man, is getting things in shape for Jean Store's "This Is a Sin-Trying World," to be staged August 26 at Griffith Stadium . . . James S. Decker, producer of Braddock Heights' Mountain Theater, says the first half of this season has been the second best in his theater's 10 years . . . The West Coast company of "Kiss Me, Kate," with Anne Jeffreys and Keith Andes, hitting $54,000 for the week in Los Angeles, which tops the New York company; both stars, once owned by the movies, are pushing away bioscope offers.

THE "GOING NATIVE" kids, who open their revue at the Capitol on August 25, are in for a pleasant surprise on the sixteenth, after which there won't be time for such things . . . Ian Keith, star of countless films, including "The Crusades," "The Sign of the Cross" and "The Three Musketeers," guest-starred at Abington over the weekend with the Barter Theater in "Accent on Youth" . . . Ezio Pinza's first movie, which means he'll leave "South Pacific" around the first of 1950, will be opposite Metro's Greer Garson in "Mr. Imperium" . . . Lauritz Melchior paved the way from Metropolitan to Metro.

MUSICAL-SLAP-HAPPY Capitalites get their palates eased tonight with the Meridian Hill's touring "On the Town"; considering that both C. U.'s spring musical and Olney's Hartman reprises sold out, the week bodes well for the new theater . . . Kay DeWitt writes the occasionally two-headed drama desk that she's having a swell time working her vacation at Schroon Lake's Scaroon Manor . . . Frances Starr being musical at Tanglewood . . . Sibyl Bowan in St. Louis for Muny Opera's "Roberta."

THE PAN AMERICAN Union's a provocative exhibit on Rio de Janeiro's "Negro Experimental Theater of Brazil," which soon will tour the States . . . Joan Walsh, J. Robert Dietz and a covey of C. Boy, 10, Sent to Pen; Too Young for School

Columbia, S. C., Aug. 7 (AP).—A 10-year-old Negro boy is in the South Carolina penitentiary because he is too young for the state's reform school.

Prison Superintendent Wyndham M. Manning explained the penitentiary has no age limit but that the reform school is only for boys from 12 to 17 years.

Manning said the boy, Robert Lewis Hamilton of Abbeville, S. C., was sentenced to one year after robbing a filling station of seven dollars to buy candy.

He added that Circuit Judge M. A. Mann had been unable to find anyone willing to accept custody of the lad.

Ozzie the Owl, Shot by Arrow, Is Recovering

Oswald, the arrow-pierced owl, is taking nourishment (horsemeat) again, and the heart of a black-haired 13-year-old is gladdened.

Oswald, a young barred owl, is the pet of Jeffrey, only child of Navy Capt. and Mrs. Joseph N. Wenger of 4918 Tilden st. nw.

Oswald's history dates back to this spring when Jeffrey and chum George Baldwin, also 13, of 4826 Sedgwick st. nw., discovered an owl's nest. They watched the nest and when there was a baby owl—Oswald—George captured it and gave it to Jeffrey.

Ozzie, in most un-owl-like fashion, flies around the neighborhood by day, and sleeps in a box in the Wengers' backyard at night. But Friday night Ozzie did not come to Jeffrey's wrist when paged.

It was after dark when Jeffrey learned from a little boy that the owl was roosting in a tree across the street, an arrow in his breast.

Jeffrey and his father tried to coax Ozzie down, but it was not until Saturday that the injured bird came down.

The owl was hurried to the Zoo, where Malcolm Davis, assistant headkeeper, removed the brass-tipped arrow and patted ointment on the wound.

She Tells the World About U. S.

'Trina' Campbell, An American With a Big Title, Bigger Job

By Genevieve Reynolds

WHAT THE peoples around the globe read about life in the United States depends largely upon the good judgment of Danish-born, American-educated Mrs. Katrine Campbell. Upon her trim shoulders rests the responsibility of selecting magazine and newspaper stories depicting true, contemporary Americana.

She's weighted down with the monumental title of "Washington laision head of the Periodical Unit, International Press and Publication Office of the International Information Office, United States Department of State."

Gloeau

MRS. GEORGE JOHN McCLOUD is the former Miss Miriam Frances McGrath, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Joseph McGrath of Arlington, who was married August 6 at St. Charles Church. Her husband is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George Mullin McCloud, also of Arlington. The Rev. R. Dixon Beattie, uncle of the bride, officiated at the nuptial mass. The bride was gowned in white marquisette fashioned with hoop shirt and shoulder ruffles of Valenciennes lace. Her shoulder-length net veil fell from a wreath of lilies of the valley, and she carried an old fashion bouquet of white roses and lilies of the valley. Miss Mary Elizabeth Kirkley of Fairfax was maid of honor. Alexis Rovzar of Mexico City was best man, and the ushers were William Cour and E. Barron Batchelder of Washington. A reception was held at the home of the bride's parents. The couple will make their home in Parkfairfax, Alexandria, after a honeymoon in the Pocono Mountains.

In her post, which she has held about three years, she must read thousands of newspaper artticles, magazine stories and bulletins. And from the mass of material, she selects the stories that portray all phases of American work and play.

In turn, the reprints are relayed to various United States Embassies and Information Services in over 50 countries. From there on, the United States information officers distribute the material to local magazines, newspapers and other news mediums.

One of Many Devices

The reprints from the American papers, bulletins and periodicals are one of several important devices used by the State Department's INP division to interpret truthfully and accurate life in the United States as a counteraction to heavy Communist propaganda throughout the world. Numerous pictures, film strips and day-by-day stories written by the department's reporters tell the story of this Nation.

Born in Copenhagen, she came to this country at the age of 11 with her parents and settled in New Jersey. After graduating from the schools here, she returned to Denmark for further study. She's visited nearly all the countries in Europe as well as Great Britain.

Mrs. Campbell holds the unusual distinction of having directed a male staff, when she served as managing editor of the Scientific American. She started out on the magazine working for D. E. E. Free.

"It was wonderful having an all-male staff," she said, insisting that "men are very cooperative, if a woman knows her job."

War Stint Overseas

During World War II, Mrs. Campbell—"Trina," as she's called by her friends—did a stint with the Overseas Branch of OWI. Her job also included a weekly newsletter on science, agriculture and religion. Another interesting war job was serving as executive secretary on Public Relations to Free Denmark Committee.

Working double-crostics and cooking are tall, slender Trina's hobbies. When and if she ever gets time, she hopes to compile a cook book.

But when it comes to deciding what stories to distribute for foreign consumption, she uses the yardstick of interest. First, however, the material must portray accurately how the everyday American works and plays. Incoming reports from the field tell her what subjects interest particular sections.

From Batavia come floods of requests for American fashions and music. Italy wants all possible information on contemporary American authors.

In Arabia, It's Sports

Iran, Saudi Arabia and Egypt ask for more and more information on American sports. And, of all things, Iranians want more pictures and material on ice boating and ice skating.

Residents in Madras, India, are interested in American sports.

Natives of Rangoon, Burma, want all possible pictures and know-how on American interior decorating, folk-dancing, ballet, football and harness racing.

According to Mrs. Campbell, China and all Far Eastern countries are interested in Hollywood personalities as well as the makeup and content of all American magazines.

In sending out stories, she says that she is very careful to identify the authors as well as periodicals.

"Our foreign readers are impressed with the by-line stories," she explains.

Bernice Ann Jeweler, Sidney Drazin To Wed

Mr. and Mrs. William Jeweler announce the engagement of their daughter, Bernice Ann, to Sidney Drazin, son of Mrs. Sarah Drazin of this city.

Miss Jeweler is a student of Maryland University where she is a member of Phi Sigma Sorority. Her fiance is a Navy veteran.

MRS. FRANK NICHOLAS CAVALLO, the former Miss Barbara Anne Ainsworth, was married August 6 at the chapel at Fort Meade, Md., with the Rev. John T. Hayes officiating. She is the daughter of Mrs. Merle Freeman Ainsworth and the late Mr. Ainsworth of Mason City, Ill., and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Cavallo of East Weymouth, Mass. Given in marriage by her brother, Robert B. Ainsworth, the bride wore white embroidered organdy and carried a white orchid surrounded by lilies of the valley. Mrs. Robert R. Rankin was her sister's matron of honor. On return from their wedding trip to the White Mountains, N. H., Mr. and Mrs. Cavallo will live in Washington. He is a student at George Washington University and a member of Theta Delta Chi Fraternity

Miss Frieda B. Hennock, first woman member of the Federal Communications Commission, who has just recently celebrated her first anniversary with this Government agency which regulates radio, will be on the air Tuesday morning. As guest of Sonia Stein, The Washington Post's radio and television editor who is broadcasting Tuesday at 9:30 a. m. on WRC for vacationing commentator Nancy Osgood Miss Hennock will discuss some of the aspects of radio and television of special interest to women.

Tonight's the night Miss Washington gets chosen from among nine finalists at the Capitol Theater. Your ticket entitles you to see the movie, the stage show and help in choosing the winner of the contest which sends some pretty young thing to Atlantic City to represent us in the Miss America contest. (She also gets a truckload of prizes, too!) The 8 p. m. show is the one you want to catch for this.

Too warm to survive? Ever try cooling off in the art galleries? Big marble buildings are quite cool, even when they're not air-conditioned. Sit down in front of a painting of the sea, or a snow scene and there you are. If that doesn't work, look at some of the modern art that makes your blood run cold. That'll do it for sure.

TOBE SAYS—
Skirts Go Up Trifle

Yes, it's true that skirts are shorter again—but just an inch or two—thirteen inches from the ground. It's still in the medium long zone—a becoming length to everyone.

That's the correct length for suits and for daytime, afternoon and dress-up cocktail dresses. The smartest evening or dinner gowns are this same daytime length, but of course you can choose full floor length for very formal occasions.

Given the same heat treatment, a rose may thrive, while a violet wilts. And that's the way it is with the two textile fibers now sold as "rayon." A safe ironing heat for one may injure the other.

What's more, these fibers differ in almost every other quality of importance to you as a consumer. To prevent confusion when you buy, urge your retailer to call them by different names—to identify only one of them as rayon, the other as estron, as recommended by the American Society for Testing Materials.

To receive a free picture book that shows you in photographs of actual tests the differences between these two man-made fibers, just pencil your name and address on this ad, and return it to us.

How to Dry Garden Herbs

I have a herb growing in my garden I wish to dry at the proper time. I'm not sure whether the plant is balsam or basil or what, but at any rate, when and how should these herbs be dried for winter use? L. C.

To dry herbs, gather them in the morning after the dew has gone from them. Herbs of which the dried leaves are used, rather than the flower, are best if gathered before they blossom. Spread the leaves and stalks on a screen or old sheet stretched over a wooden frame and dry for two or three days in an airy place away from direct sun rays. Do not overdry as this destroys the essential oils in the leaves. When dry, strip the leaves from the stalks and store in airtight glass containers. Glass is suggested because if the leaves should not be thoroughly dry, moisture will form on the inside of the glass signaling the need for more complete dehydration.

Most herbs, including basil, may be used green, but in using them fresh remember that it takes one teaspoon of fresh herbs to equal one-half teaspoon dried or one-fourth teaspoon powdered. Soaking dried herbs in a few drops of water or lemon juice will make the flavor more distinct when used.

Since you seem a bit uncertain as to just which herbs you have, you may be interested in a guide available by writing to Food Editor, The Family Circle Magazine, 25 West 45th st., New York 19, New York. The names of the common herbs together with a sketch of each and suggested ways to use are printed on a cardboard suitable for hanging in the kitchen. For the guide, send 20 cents.

My relatives in Europe often ask me to send them a can of egg powder such as was given them in their rations in the years immediately after the war and which is still being sent in CARE packages. I tried to purchase it in several grocery stores in vain. I wonder if you could tell me if and where it is possible to get these powdered eggs? R. S. G.

Several of the stores listed under "Food-Health" in the yellow pages of the telephone book carry powdered eggs packed for overseas shipping.

I can't get crocheted baskets or ruffled edges on crocheted doilies to stand up nice and stiff. I have tried using a very stiff starch, but the ruffles are always limp. I have heard you use a sugar starch. Do you know how this is made? E. H. B.

We have mentioned sugar starch in this column, but in so doing have said that we felt our modern starches were an improvement over it. One reason laundry starch is better is because sugar starch draws moisture in very humid weather, causing the "starched" piece to wilt rapidly.

So, to get a good stiffness into your crochet work, I'd suggest you dip it into a boiled starch using the formula for the heavy starch on the package. If this doesn't make them stiff enough, allow them to dry completely and dip the dry crocheting again into the heavy starch. Squeeze the starch well through the threads and dry thoroughly.

Can you suggest a method for removing mustard (the variety dispensed at amusement parks) from a cotton dress? R. K. W.

The stain should come out readily if you will dampen it and rub glycerine or liquid shampoo into it. Rub vigorously between the fingers continuing to add glycerine until stain is gone. Rinse thoroughly.

If this doesn't completely remove it, it will be necessary to use a bleach. But, if the dress is colored try the bleach out on an inside seam to see what it does to the dress color before applying to the stain.

I have a feather bed I should like to have made into a quilt, but I have been unable to find any place in Washington that does such work. Would you know of any? Z. G.

There is a firm on Connecticut ave. which does this work. You can reach them by calling Ordway 1812.

I recently got as a gift a lovely nylon blouse. I am at a loss to know how to wash and iron it. Can you help me? M. B.

Nylon blouses are quickly and easily washed by using a mild soap or detergent just as you would in washing rayons or silks. When clean, rinse thoroughly. To dry, hang on a padded hanger so blouse will dry in the correct shape. Then no ironing at all is needed.

PETUNIA!

Nothing, I think
Is so blithely enticing
As cake which is frosted
With lovely Pink Icing!

And if you'll beat a little red jelly into the frosting just before you spread it on, Petunia, you'll have beautiful pink frosting . . . and a deliciously subtle new taste!

Tartar Sauce

When you serve a cold seafood salad, add a small cup of lettuce to the plate and fill the cup with a little tartar sauce. To make the sauce, just add sweet pickle relish, chopped parsley, lemon juice, and a few capers to mayonnaise or creamy salad dressing.

9-Pound Boy Born To 'Sistie' Seagraves

Portland, Ore., Aug. 7 (U.P.).—A nine-pound boy was born today to Mrs. Eleanor Seagraves, the former "Sistie" Boettiger, granddaughter of the late Franklin Delano Roosevelt.

Mrs. Anna Roosevelt Boettiger said the baby would be named Nicholas Delano Seagraves. "Ellie and the baby are doing fine," she said. "Buzzie and I were here for the event together."

Time of the birth was 12:26 p. m. The child is the first great-grandson of Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, the President's widow.

FAIRHAVEN CLIFF

Beach cottage overlooking Chesapeake Bay. Excell

The Lyons Den

By Leonard Lyons

NEW YORK.—Cuba is negotiating for a loan with private investment bankers here—the first postwar private loan to a Latin-American country . . . Among this year's winners of the coveted Lasker Awards of the American Public Health Association will be Drs. Philip Hench and Edward Kendall, of the Mayo Clinic . . . The current, 25th Anniversary issue of the Saturday Review of Literature sold out its 150,000 copies and will go into a second printing. Longmans, Green & Co. will publish this issue of the magazine in book form, at $3 a copy . . . Al Jolson will return to the stage this week, and play 18 shows Wednesday, Thursday and Friday at Loew's neighorhood theaters, to publicize his newest film, "Jolson Sings Again."

The Washington gossip columns have been linking Max Truitt, jr., grandson of Alben Barkley, and Betsy Goodloe Porter, daughter of Paul Porter. Both families are from Kentucky . . . The Vice President recently made a trip to Winchester, Ky., where he met Mrs. Deda Benton Battaile. She told him: "Years ago I'd have identified myself as Judge Benton's daughter." Barkley knew Judge Benton and shook his daughter's hand . . . "And years later I'd have identified myself as Paul Porter's sister-in-law," Mrs. Battaile continued. Barkley, an old friend of Porter's, shook his sister-in-law's hand again . . . "But now," said Mrs. Battaile, "I must identify myself as Max's Betsy Goodloe's Aunt Deda."

Ed Small, who spent $5000 to sponsor Shirley Mae France's cross-Channel swim, now finds he can't get any publicity for his "Black Magic" movie, in connection with her feat. She was to have used a bathing suit emblazoned with the letters "Black Magic," but Small was notified she'll make the swim in the nude. Then he arranged to have the name of his movie painted on the side of the boat which will accompany the swimmer on her Channel-crossing. But the official Channel-swimming committee ruled against it, as undignified.

Olsen & Johnson, now committing their theatrical mayhem for Television, tell of the time they brought their "Hellzapoppin'" to New Orleans. Roark Bradford, the late famed Southern writer, took his young son, Richard, to see the show. The youngster drank from a bottle of coke, and the cannonading and assaulting of actors on stage so excited the boy that he splattered coke over the lady sitting in front of him. She turned in rage, smiled and was satisfied when Bradford told her: "This is part of the show."

George Jessel had deep respect and admiration for the late Sam Bernard. He made a speech at Bernard's funeral, extolling the actor's talent and good deeds. The next day Jessel was scheduled to make a speech at the funeral of another Broadway figure, who had been unpopular. "You didn't like him," Jessel was reminded. "Where will you find the nice things to say about him?" . . . Jessel replied: "I got some left over—from Sam Bernard."

Probe Begun Into Voodoo Murder List

London, Aug. 7 (U.P.).—A Cambridge University professor has set out on a dangerous trek into the African jungles to investigate the recent wave of voodoo murders, commonwealth relations officials said today.

Gwilym Jones, 47-year-old anthropologist, will travel for months astride a donkey and on foot through the wild country of Basutoland and Swaziland, seeking the causes for the revival of voodoo ritual which has resulted in at least 44 murders recently.

The scientist began his investigations in Pretoria last month. There he interviewed two leading Basutoland chieftains just before they were executed for the ritual murder of a tribesman.

Jones also has made reports on his interview with five other basutos, condemned for ritual murders which officials said were carried out with "revolting bestiality."

In Pretoria, Jones already has been dubbed the "Sherlock Holmes of Swaziland."

One of the chieftains interviewed by Jones before his execution was said to have paid the equivalent of $500 to a voodoo murderer to procure the lips of a rival in love.

By drinking a potion concocted from the severed lips, the chieftain hoped to be endowed with greater charm and sexual prowess.

Another tribesman told Jones he aimed at achieving greater prestige and influence by imbibing blood from a living victim.

Man Knocked Down, Robbed of New Suit

Marvin Farington, 38, of 803 2nd st. se., told police yesterday he was robbed of a $30 suit late Saturday night by an assailant who knocked him to the ground.

Farrington said he was carrying the suit, a light brown one, in a cardboard box while walking in the 400 block of L st. se.

69th Year Helping Build Greater Washington

Westmoreland Hills

. . . Maryland Suburb of Washington just over the District Line, between Massachusetts Avenue N. W. extended and Dalecarlia Reservoir.

Westmoreland Hills lies on a high elevation heavily wooded with oak, beech, poplar, hickory, and dogwood. Thus a charming natural setting is afforded distinctive homes.

In Westmoreland Hills and elsewhere in the Washington Metropolitan Area, Washington Permanent Building Association has long fostered community growth and development.

Since 1881, when many of today's residential areas were virgin fields, farms and forests, the service of Washington Permanent toward home ownership has been most helpful to thousands of families in the District, nearby Maryland and Virginia. A friendly discussion of your problems is invited.

TRY IT
A BELT POUCH FOR DAY HIKES

For you boys and girls who like to take day hikes and do not want to be loaded down with odds and ends, a belt pouch is a practical answer.

If you like to make your own, design one like this by first drawing a paper pattern for both the front and the back. Be sure to include enough material in the back piece to allow for the fringe which can be cut with large shears. Lay the front pattern on the back and put the lacing holes through both pieces at once so that the holes will match and will not pucker when they are laced.

An old suede jacket or any scrap of leather will do. Use a leather punch or an ice pick as a hole puncher, and place them every half inch around the sides. If you do not have any leather, use canvas and lace it with a shoe string in place of a leather thong. Cut belt slots and button hole, sew on button, and lace the back and front together. Run your belt through the slots, and pack your pouch for a hike.

What's the Verdict?

COMMUNITY USE

Q. A real estate company sold lots along a lake that it owned, naming the development Lake View. The plat showed the lots to be divided by 10-foot strips, and showed a 35-foot strip around the lake. The plat said: "The 10-foot strips and the 35-foot strip reserved for community use of property owners in Lake View Development." Mr. X bought a lot and built a house on it. Mr. Y subsequently bought an adjacent lot, built a dock at that part of the lake nearest his property, and not only forbids Mr. X to use it, but accuses him angrily of trespassing any time he gets near it. He claims the company gave him permission to build the dock. What are Mr. X's rights?

A. When Mr. X bought his lot, he not only bought that particular piece of land, but he also bought the right to share in the use of any of the 10-foot strips and the right to share in the use of any part of the 35-foot strip. The company's grant of permission to Mr. Y to build a dock cannot reduce Mr.

X's right to use the land at the point where the dock touches land. As a practical matter, this would mean he could use the dock in order to enjoy his share of the use of that part of the beach. A court might stretch a point and require him to pay part of the cost of the dock in order to use it, but on strict technicality he ought not be required to do so.—F.L.D.

Thank You, Friend

My eyes are weary and I wish . . . That I could sleep tonight . . . But if I did not say these words . . . I would not feel all right . . . I want to speak my gratitude . . . For all your kindly praise . . . And thank you for your aid to me . . . In many others ways . . . You have been more than generous . . . And more than just a friend . . . And that is why I tie my heart . . . To every thought I send . . . I want you to believe me when . . . I say I am sincere . . . And I will always be with you . . . Whatever day or year . . . Because you are so friendly and . . . Because you are so true . . . That I would like with all my heart . . . To be of help to you.

BARNABY

That was Mrs. Van Ess. Her husband still thinks he saw a Sea-Serpent. But he doesn't believe in them! He's gone to the city to consult his psychiatrist!
We DID see SOMETHING in the water—
It was a seal. A friend of my Fairy Godfather.
Hello, Barnaby. Our pearls are about ready for market. Just a few more days intensive irritation to fatten them off. We'll get Gus and McSnoyd back on the job—now that things have quieted down—
Things haven't quieted down, Mr. O'Malley—
Everybody is all upset. They think your friend Rover is a Sea-Serpent.
How can they? With not one shred of scientific evidence to prove that Sea-Serpents exist—

INFORMATION PLEASE

Robert R. Wright of 619 S. Highland st., Arlington, Va., wonders if anybody can tell him where he can get some Durham Duplex blades sharpened.

He likes his razor and has 6 dozen blades for it. But he reports: "I can't find any local store that will do resharpening for me."

OPENING DAY JITTERS

This afternoon at 1:30 I'll begin my new radio series on WRC, and if air time doesn't arrive soon, I won't have a fingernail left.

You can be in radio for years and years without ever learning to take a new show in stride.

From the second day on, it's not so bad. But on that first day you know something is bound to go wrong—and the suspense is awful until you find out what it will be.

MAKE HASTE SLOWLY

Several returning vacationers have remarked about the confusing way in which many States warn motorists about speed laws.

Very often these roadside signs say: "Enter Speed Zone" and "Leave Speed Zone."

Out-of-State motorists aren't always sure what those words mean. Does "Enter Speed Zone" mean that you are entering a zone where you are permitted to speed? Or does it mean that you are entering a zone where the maximum speed is regulated?

To make matters worse, very often one can drive for miles without seeing a sign which states a specific speed limit. Only those cryptic signs.

On our recent tour of New England, I finally deduced that the signs mean the opposite of what they say. "Enter Speed Zone" means "Slow Down."

If my deduction was wrong, we certainly wasted a lot of time slowing down.

But we got home in one piece, so maybe "Slow Down" is a pretty good policy regardless of what the sign says or means.

GIVE-AWAYS

"Clean, playful 10-week-old tiger kittens; we'll have five more assorted kittens in a few weeks." (Ordway 0331.)

"Well-trained 2-month-old female fox terrier pup; a lovable ball of black-and-white fluff." (Warfield 2696.)

"Gentle, pretty, black-and white female cat; housebroken." (Union 7543.)

An excellent duplicating machine is available to a civic or charitable organization, courtesy of George's Radio Co. (they bought a new model) and the Leon Typewriter Co. (they're putting the old one in tip-top shape). Call Republic 3145.

ADD NICKNAMES

Helen Gerson of 3023 14th st. nw. postcards from Denver that she's discovered a restaurateur who prides himself on his unusual nickname.

She reports that Joe Coffee, owner of the Ringside Lounge, is universally known as "Awful Coffee."

(Leave it to a woman to kill the point of the story. Helen adds that the coffee isn't awful at all.)

PERSONAL NOTES

Henrietta Hickerson, 3102 24th st. ne.: Sorry I misunderstood your suggestion about the air conditioning, but it was a good idea anyhow.

VAGRANT THOUGHT

Mrs. Francis X. Shumaker of 3819 Oglethorpe st., Hyattsville, Md., wonders "what happens to all the flies that have been pestering you, the minute you pick up a flyswatter?"

ADD SIGNS

J. Ashby Mason of 1761 Shepherd st. nw. gets a chuckle out of the sign in a real estate office window at 510 F st. nw. It reads:

"Houses for Sale, $1000 Down & Up."

OVERHEARD

She: What do you mean "a bunch?" There are only two of them.
He: Two is a bunch.
She: What's three?
He: Three's a crowd.

Listen to the District Line on the air Monday through Friday at 1:30 p. m., over WRC.

Maragon Probe Worries Greeks

By Drew Pearson

One thing the Senate investigating subcommittee is likely to avoid in its probe of Messrs. Vaughan and Maragon, which opens today, is the part they may have played in influencing the Truman doctrine for Greece.

Maragon

It seems inconceivable that a former Greek Federal narcotics agent from Kansas City should have had anything to do with United States foreign relations. Yet it happens that members of the Greek embassy in Washington are now as jittery as sunflowers in a Kansas cyclone for fear their relations with John Maragon will be probed by the Senate.

Every administration has its hangers-on, who love to bask in the limelight of the White House. But no administration since Warren Harding's day has had the benefit of such a weird and apparently influential character as General Vaughan's so-called "Greek adviser," John Maragon.

What Record Shows

District of Columbia police records show that John F. Maragon once paid a fine for transporting liquor (7/17/20), was three times arrested for disorderly conduct but never prosecuted, and once got into a brawl in the locker room of the Washington Senators, where some of the ball players threatened to beat him up.

Maragon also got into a fist fight with Don Watson, chief of the State Department's transportation section at the United Nations convention at San Francisco.

Yet, on top of all this, the amazing Maragon turned up at the White House 30 minutes after President Roosevelt died to console President Truman, accompanied the Roosevelt funeral train to Hyde Park; was the proud possessor of a White House Pass, flabbergasted the admirals by accompanying Truman on the Presidential destroyer during the Navy Day fleet review in New Work, sat next to the President's box with General Vaughan during the Army-Navy game, and even had a private compartment on the special train that carried the President to the game.

Maragon's influence with his old friend, Harry Truman, has been on the wane since first exposed in this column two years ago. But his influence with Harry Vaughan appears just as strong as ever. When Maragon wants to see the President's military aide, he goes to the east wing of the White House, tells the guard that Vaughan wants him, and usually gets in.

Truman Doctrine in Greec

Maragon's influence was near its zenith in the winter of 1947 when the famous Truman doctrine for aid to Greece was formulated.

That the amazing Maragon directly inspired Greek policy is doubtful. That he and Vaughan influences it indirectly is more than probable.

The Truman dictrine for Greece, it will be recalled, was announced in March, 1947, shortly after Jimmie Byrnes retired as Secretary of State. One of the things General Vaughan constantly needled Truman about was that Byrnes was too much his own boss, that people talked of the "Byrnes policy," not the "Truman policy," and that Truman should get more credit for directing foreign affairs. This was one reason there was so much emphasis on calling the new move in Greece the "Truman Doctrine" at the time it was announced.

That doctrine, which has now cost us one billion dollars plus, was precipitated when the British notified us they were pulling out of Greece.

Maragon stood so well with the White House that he had himself appointed as a special observer for the Greek elections, though he was finally fired from the job by U. S. envoy Henry Grady after a row in Athens.

No wonder Greek embassy officials are worried sick for fear the Senate investigating subcommittee may get too inquisitive regarding the operations of the amazing Maragon in regard to Greece.

Army Captain Meets Jap 'Pen Pal' in Tokyo

Tokyo, Aug. 7 (AP).—An American Army officer and his Japanese "pen pal" met for the first time today.

Their correspondence began 12 years ago when the American advertised in a Tokyo newspaper for some one to write to him about Japan.

The American is Capt. Harold P. G. H. Thomas of Hagerstown, Md.; the Japanese, Toshiya Mori of Tokyo.

Thomas came to Japan in April last year. Mori, who was a lieutenant in Manchuria, was repatriated last year from Siberia and now is an electrical appliance salesman.

Men With A Mission...

SAYS WILLIAM A. LYONS, SELLING SERVICE DIRECTOR OF THE HECHT CO.

The men pictured above are The Hecht Co.'s Selling Superintendents. Ably directed by Bill Lyons it is their job to see that all goes smoothly on the selling floors. These men, assisted by 25 Section Supervisors, are "Johnny on the spot" to assist you, the buying public, when shopping at The Hecht Co. Like the beacons that guide a ship safely into a harbor, the easy-to-identify men with carnations are your guide to the hundreds of thousands of items we sell . . . your guide to real shopping convenience. Always on hand at the point of sale, the Selling Superintendent acts on behalf of both the salesperson and the customer, assuring you of prompt, courteous service. Answering questions, directing customers, supervising the selling and service forces on their respective floors are the major duties of these men. And, when you consider that an average of 14,000,000 people shop at The Hecht Co. each year, theirs is a full time important job.

One of their most important functions is to see to it that adequate salespeople are on hand at all times to meet your requests. If a large amount of traffic is expected in any one department because of a big sales event, the Selling Superintendent anticipates the problem and provides sufficient salespeople to take care of your needs. In addition to salespeople, they provide check-writers, extra wrappers and fitters to help speed your purchases. No customer likes to be kept waiting after she has made her selection. It is the job of the Selling Superintendents and the Section Supervisors to expedite customer shopping. Working closely with the buyers, the Personnel Department, the Advertising Department and Mr. and Mrs. John Q. Public, the Selling Superintendents help coordinate the intricate process of selling in a big store . . . help make your shopping more convenient . . . help make The Hecht Co. a great place to work . . . a great place to shop.

WILLIAM A. LYONS, Selling Service Director of The Hecht Co. was born in Tippett, Md.* The official population of the town at the time of this event . . . seven people. Bill is a graduate of Georgetown University and has been in the retail business for the past 15 years. Prior to becoming a Hecht Co. associate, he was Personnel Director of one of the Nation's leading retail organizations. Bill is married and has five children. At present, most of his spare time is being devoted to furnishing and equipping the Lyons' new Washington home.
